ADOULA OPPOSES PLAN TO DISARM CONGOLESE

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula declared his opposition today to any disarming of Congolese troops, forcing the United Nations to re-examine its plan to punish the Katanga mutineers who slaughtered 13 UN airmen from Italy.

UN headquarters here immediately opened a radio link with Acting Secretary-General U Thant in New York on receipt of a letter from the Congolese premier this morning.

RUSS SET SPY TRIALS FOR GERMAN TOURISTS

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Foreign Ministry announced today the trial of two West German tourists on charges of espionage for U.S. intelligence will be held in Kiev on Nov. 28.

The defendants are Adolf Werner, 51, and his wife, Hermine, 45.

According to the Soviet announcement, the Werners carried incriminating films of Soviet military objectives and notebooks with secret writing and other espionage material.

BENNETT WANTS ACTION

Fleming Asked To Talk Power

Premier Bennett said Thursday he is writing to federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming inviting a speedy meeting either in Victoria or Ottawa on the Columbia River project.

Mr. Bennett said in Kelowna that he is leaving it up to Mr. Fleming to decide if Prime Minister Diefenbaker should also attend.

In Ottawa an aide to Mr. Fleming said the finance minister would be glad to discuss the Columbia with the premier, but would wait for his letter before deciding details of the meeting.

DIEF INVITED

At the same time a move was launched by Vancouver Conservatives to invite the prime minister to speak there about the Columbia.

These moves came against a background of dissent and confusion over the role of the U.S. in B.C.-Ottawa negotiations on the Columbia project.

This started last week when Premier Bennett met President Kennedy in Seattle, and now concerns statements attributed to U.S. Secretary of the Interior Charles Udall about the possibility of B.C. selling Columbia benefit power to the Americans.

'SOCIAL' MEETING

Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton Thursday called in U.S. ambassador Livingston Merchant in Ottawa to explain the situation.

Mr. Fulton said he had been assured by Mr. Merchant that the Kennedy-Bennett meeting was only "social" and not concerned with specific Columbia details.

He said he was awaiting a fuller report on Mr. Udall's remarks.

Mr. Fulton said press reports said "Mr. Udall commented recently that he has no doubt that the sale to the U.S. of Canada's entitlement to Columbia River power would be approved by Ottawa."

He also said Mr. Udall had been quoted that "Canada's concern about difficulties over the recapture of power sold to the U.S. under long-term contracts was stuff and nonsense."

Mr. Fulton continued: "With respect to the specific remarks attributed to Secretary of the Interior Charles Udall."

Promoted 'Peace' Project

Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren—a mystery man of international finance who indirectly became the hottest political issue in recent B.C. history—died today in a Stockholm Red Cross Hospital.

The 80-year-old financial wizard succumbed to what his doctors described as a non-benign tumor in the stomach.

His impact was felt in B.C. in 1957 when he entered an exclusive agreement with the B.C. government to explore the Rocky Mountain Trench—one-tenth the area of the whole province—with the object of developing a huge industrial complex linked to civilization with a monorail.

STILL BIG ISSUE

Out of the controversial deal grew the proposed Peace River power development—still the province's leading political issue—which was taken over by the provincial government recently.

Only remaining interest in the province held by various companies set up by Wenner-Gren is the shaky Pacific Northern Railway which succeeded the defunct monorail scheme but already has passed a deadline for start of construction. A government decision on the railway's fate is expected next week.

Dr. Wenner-Gren himself was a controversial figure in B.C. along with his several development schemes. A brother-in-law of Herman Goering, he had been blacklisted by Allied nations during the Second World War for trading with the Nazis.

Following the war, he lived in Mexico for a lengthy period but returned to his native Sweden some time ago.

He was greeted with considerable fanfare by the provincial government during a short visit here aboard his luxury yacht.

An organization genius, he was reported to have had active business interests in 20 countries.

He founded his fortune on vacuum cleaners and home refrigerators, but the scores of corporations he later controlled turned out everything from diet pills to railroad trains.

A giant among philanthropists, he had given an estimated $25,000,000 to various scientific and health foundations, he established in Sweden and the United States.

Aid Given Germany K Charges

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today lashed out at NATO members Denmark and Norway and said Russia would take "all necessary measures" now to curb the influence of warlike West Germans.

Khrushchev accused Denmark and Norway of scuttling Scandinavian security by helping West Germany threaten Russia through Finland.

The premier was speaking at Novosibirsk, Siberia, 2,000 miles from Moscow after winding up talks with Finnish President Urho Kekkonen.

The talks were on Soviet charges that West Germany and its NATO partners threatened Russia through Finland, and Khrushchev said the Soviet Union's duty was to take "all necessary measures" now before it is too late to curb West German militarists and revanchists.

"By giving in to the pressure and demands of NATO and especially of West Germany military circles and by actively entering into new military preparations, Denmark and Norway, we are undermining their own security and aggravating the situation in northern Europe and in the basin of the Baltic," he said.

Khrushchev said both Finland and Norway were helping supply three ounces of skimmed powdered milk a day. This is often the only real food the children get, with many on verge of starvation.

DRIVERLESS TRUCK RUNS WILD

Slippery, steep hill and 1,000-pound rock proved too much for Evans, Coleman and Evans dump truck today at 11.10 a.m. Truck slid, slipped its brakes and went 50 feet before crashing into 30-foot tree outside 1330 Bond. Both wheels snapped off, one rolling 180 feet into steps of 1319 Bond, shifting them off centre. Driver's door was torn off and rock fell off, crumpling pavement. Driver was not in the truck at the time and there were no injuries. Vehicle was loading rock cleared from property at head of Bond Street. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

AT KINGSTON

Prison Guard Knifed to Death

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A Kingston Penitentiary guard was hacked to death early today in a washroom at the maximum security institution.

William Clement Wentworth, 42, was found at 2 a.m. by Paul Deschamps, senior guard in charge of the prison at the time. Wentworth was bleeding from 11 wounds.

Two bloodstained knives were found in a garbage pail in the 42-prisoner dormitory where the slaying occurred. Prison officers said it appeared the guard had been attempting to defend himself.

All 42 prisoners have access to the washroom where Wentworth was found.

The guard was married, the father of two children, and had worked at the prison for nine years.

A three-pronged investigation—by prison officials, city police and RCMP has begun.

Prison officials said the 42 men in the area were kept together because they were thought to be "compatible."

The last time a guard was killed in the prison was about 10 years ago, officials said.

The slain man was reported to have been prominent in boy scout and church work.

Dormitory C, where the slaying occurred, is an open room. There are no partitions.

The washroom is at the far end from the locked and barred door.

The beds, hospital type, are in four rows with walking space between and a wider space beyond every 10th bed.

The lone guard sits at a desk near the door, locked in with the prisoners. He is not armed.

From where he sits, the guard can see the whole room.

LIGHT SIGNALS

At intervals, the patrol guard in the yard outside shines a flashlight or waves from the window.

Prison officials said there would be little reason for the senior guard to come to the dormitory other than to investigate the lack of an answering signal.

There was no word on where the two knives found came from, but it was believed they were made in the blacksmith shop or the machine shop.

PACIFIC STORM TO BRING SNOW

Most of Vancouver Island, and especially higher levels, can expect snow by Saturday morning, according to weatherman William Mackie.

"We're hoping Victoria will escape," he said.

The villain is a fast-stepping storm in the Pacific which will give cloud here by early Saturday, and rain before noon. Snowfalls will be of short duration, then will turn to rain.

Temperatures here overnight will range between 28 and 33 degrees, and maximum expected for Saturday is 45 degrees. Winds Saturday will be southeasterly at 20 miles an hour.

Unsettled weather picture is expected to continue through Sunday, Mr. Mackie said.

Ottawa Not Aware Of ECM 'Leak'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has no knowledge of a reported "leak" to the United States of a copy of a secret speech made to the European Common Market last month by Edward Heath, Britain's lord privy seal, a finance department spokesman said today.

He said the department has heard of reports in London that the U.S. government had obtained a copy of the Heath statement on Oct. 10 setting out Britain's position in negotiations on its bid to join the Common Market.

"But we know nothing about it," the Canadian government has been asking the British for a copy of the Heath statement. Finance Minister Fleming, in London talks Monday with Prime Minister Macmillan, repeated the request. He didn't get it.

CHILDREN OF INDIA

$7 a Month Sponsors Needy Child in Home

The most personal project undertaken by the Unitarian Service Committee is its Foster Parent Scheme under which it now supports 30 children in institutions in Korea, Hong Kong, Italy, France and India.

The scheme is just one of the many facets of USC work in foreign lands which is supported by donations to the Times Children of India Fund.

For only $7 a month an individual, church group, men's or women's organization or group of friends can sponsor a child in one of the 30 homes. Letters, pictures and little home-made gifts from the children convey a desperate feeling of being wanted but, as one foster parent put it: "Your scheme is a two-way street and I believe I am getting much more out of it than my child."

The $7 provides food, clothing, medical care and education. Older children are given vocational training to allow the young to stand on their own feet when they grow up.

USC executive director, Dr. Lotta Hiltzmanova, tells of a Korean boy whose foster father in Vancouver died. "All the child could do," she said, "was to send the seeds of his national flower to be planted on the father's grave so he could be near him always."

Looming over this personal care for a relatively few children is the spectre of starving and diseased children dying in their thousands.

The executive director especially appealed to Victorians who thought a few cents of a dollar was too small to give but could not spare any more. "Your dollar may not buy very much here," she said, "but if only you could see how big it grows when we use it to buy life in India."

Donations may be sent or brought to the Times at 2631 Douglas and gifts of adult and children's clothing to 1117 Wharf.

NEW YORK—A 21-year-old sheetmetal worker devoured a rich, green feast for Thanksgiving—$83 in ten, five, and one dollar bills.

Gerard Murray, arrested on an assault charge after battling with a patrolman, refused to turn over his money for safekeeping at the precinct house and ate the bills one by one, according to police.

Murray washed down his cash with a glass of water, obligingly furnished by police. He gave no reason for his action.

LEEDS, Eng.—Three hundred workers at a bus factory went on strike today because the management halted their practice of sending out for fish and chips during business hours.

VANCOUVER—Toy floor managers in Vancouver stores said Thursday the ban-the-bomb movement has affected the Christmas toy market.

One floor manager said: "People seem to be reacting against the nuclear age. They are going out of their way to buy toys which have no connection with war."

LONDON—Retiring blacksmith William Rice's appeal to the Queen Mother to help him find a home for his three old horses has succeeded.

The horses are all over 20 years old. The blacksmith—who at 74 is one of London's last smiths—wrote an appeal to the mother of Queen Elizabeth. The Queen Mother appealed to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

As a result, John, Ada and Jim will be moved Sunday from a stable behind Rice's blacksmith shop to a farm in nearby County Surrey.

WINNIPEG—The Winnipeg School Board Thursday rejected a proposal to take straps away from teachers.

A motion by trustee Mary Kirdash to limit the right to administer corporal punishment to principals only was defeated by a 9-5 vote.

Three organizations had appealed to the board to abolish corporal punishment entirely.

City Council Delays On Promotion Fight

An arbitration award involving promotion procedures in the city fire department handed down last month was tabled Thursday by the city council at the request of the fire wardens committee.

The award nullified a city promotion of a junior lieutenant, over the heads of several senior lieutenants, into a vacant captaincy. It said he could only be considered as holding the position in an acting capacity.

The council was told that fire wardens chairman Ald. A. I. Curtis and city manager C. C. Wyatt, who had refused to disclose contents of the award publicly, wanted to negotiate

"other matters" before dealing with the award.

Firemen's union president Eric Simmons complained to the council that implementation of the binding award was "long overdue" since it had been made October 4.

He expressed fears that further delay might be used to circumvent the award.

"I request that appropriate action be taken immediately to carry out the terms of the award, in the spirit of bargaining in good faith and the continuation of good relations between the representatives of the city and the fire fighters."

land and Russia are threatened by "West German militarists and revenge seekers."

A recent Soviet note to Finland had failed to change the outlook of Danish and Norwegian leaders, he said.

MILITARY COMMAND

Khrushchev recalled that West German Defence Minister Franz-Josef Strauss had recently accepted an invitation from the Norwegian government to visit Norway, and noted that Danish-West German talks were under way toward creation of a joint military command between the two countries.

"One does not want to believe it but all this looks very much like some kind of military demonstration," Khrushchev said.

He said Russia had "most regretfully" noted that Scandinavia was no longer an area of peace and calm, which it was until recently.

"Finland's neutrality is one of the important guarantees of the preservation of peace and tranquility in the European north and Baltic area," Khrushchev said.

SOURCE OF WORRY

He said activities of right-wing Finnish groups aimed at torpedoing Soviet-Finnish friendship are a source of worry to Russia.

The official news agency Tass said the Khrushchev-Kekkonen talks were conducted "in a spirit of frankness and mutual confidence." Tass published Khrushchev's speech here.

In Helsinki, the foreign ministry announced that the Khrushchev-Kekkonen talks took place in a "spirit of frankness, mutual and understanding and sincere confidence."

Kekkonen arranged to return to Moscow and to catch a train that is expected to get him to Helsinki Sunday.

(Khrushchev's speech, and earlier his note to the Finnish government requesting joint defence talks, seem to have been sparked by the recent action of NATO in setting up a Baltic command whose members are West Germany, Norway and Denmark.)

Khrushchev Friday said love for peace dictated Russia's de-

Wilson Promises To Work For Tourism

Mayorality candidate R. B. (Dick) Wilson today pledged he would strive to expand the city's tourist and convention business as the best long-term economic prospect for the city.

He said new income sources and job opportunities should be sought constantly.

"I elected mayor, I would work towards the expansion of the tourist and convention business which gives the promise of being our largest dollar earner," he said.

He said a great deal of good groundwork has been done in developing the tourist interest but there still remain great opportunities for increasing the city's share of the tourist dollar.

"Our facilities for catering to tourism are better now than ever before, but we should be forever searching for additional ways of attracting more people and making their visit more enjoyable and their stay longer," he said.

QUEEN, PHILIP SAIL FOR SIERRA LEONE

MONROVIA (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip left here in the royal yacht Britannia early today for Freetown, capital of Sierra Leone, after a one-day visit to Liberia as part of a West African tour.

Before they left, the royal couple gave a dinner on board the yacht for President William Tubman and his wife. Leading Liberians and Commonwealth ambassadors also attended.

This was followed later by a reception during which the Queen's guests watched a fireworks display over the harbor.

The Queen and the Prince will arrive in Freetown Saturday.

Sierra Leone became an independent state within the Commonwealth last April after 153 years of British rule.

Tough Curbs on Gambling Urged in Ontario Report

TORONTO (CP)—A report on gambling prepared for the Ontario government recommends legal betting off the race tracks as well as other reforms of gambling laws.

It also favors tough measures to curb illegal gambling, including withdrawal of telephone service from known bookmakers.

The report, prepared by Professor J. Desmond Morton of Osgoode Hall law school and economic statistician Rolf Eng, was made public Thursday.

It contains a warning that illegal gambling poses a "real and immediate danger" to Canadian society.

"The committee is satisfied that there is a grave danger, if the present illegal gambling operation is permitted to continue, that either domestic or foreign criminal elements will prosper to such an extent as

QUEEN'S DANCE WITH NKURUMAH CRITICIZED

Boers Shocked by 'High Life' Hop

PORT ELIZABETH (Reuters)—The local South African nationalist newspaper Die Oosierg says it was "scandalous" that Queen Elizabeth danced with President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana during her visit to the West African nation.

"An Afrikaans-speaking person with his deep-rooted color feeling must not be blamed if he is disgusted at the spectacle of the British Queen on the dance floor with a black dictator of Africa," it said.

GLAD LINK GONE

"It is just as well that we in South Africa are no longer linked with a Commonwealth where such things are becoming the fashion to an increasing extent," it added.

Die Oosierg notes that according to reports: "They enjoyed it at the same time. The prince consort, Prince Philip, waved with a happy laugh and danced the same dance with Mrs. Nkrumah."

"ABOMINABLE"

"This spectacle of the honored head of the once-mighty British Empire dancing with black natives of Pagan Africa is extremely scandalous and abominable for more than just Afrikaners."

"Trumpeting forth that the Queen apparently enjoys it is just as bad."

"While realizing that Britons do not recognize color differences, it remains in our opinion a pitiful outrage of the dignity one associates with a white royalty.

The pilot was trying to nurse the crippled plane to Whitehorse, where he had taken off moments before. He

The plane was reported to have crashed in deep snow at the base of a mountain. Temperatures in the area where down around zero.

A para-rescue team was being sent from Elmendorf air base to aid RCAF rescue crews from Whitehorse. The latter started the search on Thursday night and were handicapped by temperatures that sank to 21 degrees below zero.

'Machine Politics' In Civic Race Mooney Charges

Ald. M. H. Mooney Thursday told city council it had been unfairly criticized by press and radio and charged that machine politics had entered the civic election.

City Hall Vote Abandoned

A bylaw setting up a Dec. 14 plebiscite on proposed purchase of the B.C. Hydro building was killed quietly by city council Thursday.

The unexpected move came when aldermen unanimously refused to give final reading to the measure.

Official reason given in council by the mayor and several aldermen was that the day-to-day changes taking place in negotiations for the building made a vote unreliable because no one could be sure what the actual proposal would be by the time ballots were cast.

TRAP FEARED
But the unofficial explanation was that council feared the government would use a favorable vote to trap the city into taking the B.C. Electric bus service as part of the deal.

As some aldermen saw it, a yes vote by ratepayers would morally obligate council to go ahead with the purchase regardless of terms so long as they didn't exceed the $660,000 price tag.

This would enable the government to sell the building below that price and throw in the buses free—along with their $500,000 annual deficit.

CRESTON (CP)—Two Sons of Freedom Doukhobors were committed Thursday to stand trial in the first of two preliminary hearings in connection with a bombing and attempted bombing at Wynndel, five miles north of here.

The hearing is the first of several in connection with terrorist activities in West Kootenay this year.

De Gaulle Tightly Guarded in U.K.

From Times News Services

LONDON — French President de Gaulle arrived today for a weekend of confidential talks with Prime Minister Macmillan on how the West should handle the Berlin crisis.

De Gaulle's plane landed at Gatwick Airport outside London. Immediately an unusually tight security net formed around the 71-year-old president.

De Gaulle reviewed the guard and then he and Macmillan climbed into an automobile for the journey to Birch Grove.

Madame de Gaulle and Lady Macmillan followed in a second car.

Macmillan was expected to try to persuade de Gaulle that the time has come for the West to line up its position and negotiate with Russia on Berlin.

There were hopes de Gaulle may feel now that Russia has agreed to resume nuclear test ban talks, that the atmosphere has improved sufficiently for the West to forego a policy of sitting tight.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is expected to follow up his talks with President Kennedy by trying to bring de Gaulle around to negotiations when he meets him next Thursday.

MAY VISIT BONN

Macmillan might visit Bonn in early December to round up Western consultations for a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting during the NATO ministerial conference at Paris in mid-December.

The London Times says in an editorial that "the way to negotiations is now open" following Adenauer's Washington visit.

De Gaulle and Macmillan also were expected to discuss the prospects of European political union. Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath, in charge of negotiations for British entry to the Common Market, will dine with the two leaders tonight.

The Common Market members already are discussing ideas for political unity based on their trade alliance. De Gaulle, who favors a confederation while others want full federation, was reported talking until it is a Common Market member.

Who Pays the Cost?

ACCORDING TO THE VANCOUVER Province, Mr. Axel Wenner-Gren and his fellow promoters have taken a collective profit of $2.9 millions out of their Peace River scheme. Let the public understand at once who is the real source of this money—no one but the British Columbia taxpayers. They are subsidizing the promoters.

The public should also understand that the government expropriated the Peace River promotion because it had concluded that Mr. Wenner-Gren's great plans for electrical power, a railway and various industries could not go ahead.

They were obstructed because the then privately-owned B.C. Electric would not commit itself in advance to massive purchases of Peace River power.

Premier Bennett continually pressed the late Mr. Dal Grauer to buy this power but he refused, even when threatened with the expropriation of the B.C. Electric. In the judgment of Mr. Grauer, probably Canada's ablest public utility executive, Peace River power would be too expensive, would penalize the consumer and damage the B.C. Electric.

When Mr. Bennett could not compel Mr. Grauer to commit his company completely to the Peace River scheme, the government expropriated the B.C. Electric, along with the Wenner-Gren promotion.

The established public utility and the dubious promotion were both taken over by the government without any impartial judgment of their value to protect the shareholders as vendors or the taxpayers as buyers.

The price of B.C. Electric shares was fixed by their quotation on the stock exchange at a certain day, though such fluctuating quotations cannot indicate the true value of any stock.

The amount to be paid to the Wenner-Gren promoters was to be fixed by the provincial comptroller general, an excellent official but a servant of the government. Though his integrity is not to be doubted, it was quite unfair to him and to the public that he should be compelled to undertake this responsibility.

His instructions were that the promoters should be paid exactly the amount that they had spent on their northern investigations. The amount thus fixed was $8 millions but, oddly enough, the government did not immediately announce the figure. It was finally dug out of the records by a Times reporter.

Up to now the government has not stated how that figure was calculated. Where, when and how did the promoters spend all that money? What proof did they give of actual expenditure? Where are their vouchers, receipts and other documents of proof?

None of these facts has been given to the public but the government is bound to give them to the Legislature as soon as it meets. If the Legislature does not insist on getting them it will have lost the power of the purse and abdicated its first duty.

Meanwhile, according to the Province, the promoters have made a huge over-all profit without producing a kilowatt of power, without establishing a single industry and without even building the railway which Mr. Bennett always regarded as the primary objective of their scheme.

Why should there be any profit at all? How could there be if the government's formula was strictly enforced and the promoters were paid only the amount they had actually spent?

As the Province reports, some of the shareholders in the promotion have lost money while others have gained a still larger amount. Apparently the government regards these gains and losses—a net gain for the whole deal—as solely the business of the shareholders.

The total amount paid to them collectively, however, is the business of the taxpayers who supply all the money. The taxpayers have a right to know why there should be any profit on a scheme which never succeeded; why Mr. Wenner-Gren emerges richer by a very large sum of taxpayers' money from his adventure in British Columbia.

Behind the Cheering

THE QUEEN'S VISIT TO Ghana has been hailed as a great success from the point of view of encouraging a fine show of appreciation and loyalty from the people as a whole. In making this arduous trip and carrying out her royal duties with the usual faultless perfection, the Queen has earned the admiration of all.

But despite her accomplishment, the sombre background of Ghana remains—the barely curbed unrest, the lurking violence, the shaky democratic structure—and the sinister, dictatorial activities of President Nkrumah.

Nkrumah, with a controlling hand on the legislature, has acted to safeguard his regime in a legal way. It is legal in the same manner that the enabling legislation of Hitler and Mussolini was legal.

To silence political criticism, Nkrumah had the Preventive Detention Act passed. This enables him to put political opponents in jail for five years without trial. Some 250 political prisoners are believed to be in Ghana's jails under this act.

He has put through a law which establishes a high court to try treason, sedition and other offences against the peace such as rioting and unlawful assembly. This legal net is wide enough to catch anybody Nkrumah doesn't want around. The special high court can sentence to prison or to death; there is no jury, no right of appeal, and a simple majority of the bench can convict.

The field is wide open for the President. With such a law behind him, there will be little criticism or opposition to his operations.

Here is a ghastly parody of democracy, a governmental farce by political children. It is jungle law brought into the halls of the capital, and it cannot be hidden by the crowds of thousands of common people who came in sincerity and affection to cheer their Queen.

Nicely Done, Jaycees

ONCE AGAIN THE JUNIOR Chamber of Commerce has shown a community spirit—backed by good judgment and active follow-through—that sets an example for all of us.

With excellent understanding and foresight the members of the organization have voted to establish a laboratory for radio-isotope chemistry at Victoria College, the funds to come from their exhibition proceeds this year plus matching government grants.

The new acquisition will greatly enhance the science department at the College, and provide important services and equipment for the use of local hospitals and police. The contribution is valuable not only for itself, but as an indication of popular support for the rapidly growing College, and a hint of the further advances that may be expected as time goes on.

Meanwhile the community and the Gordon Head institution are indebted to the Jaycees, who have added to their reputation for coming up with good ideas and carrying them through to completion.

Too Conservative on Parks

FEW BRITISH COLUMBIANS need to be reminded of the growing popularity of their parks. Each year statistics disclose more people turning to them for recreation than in previous seasons.

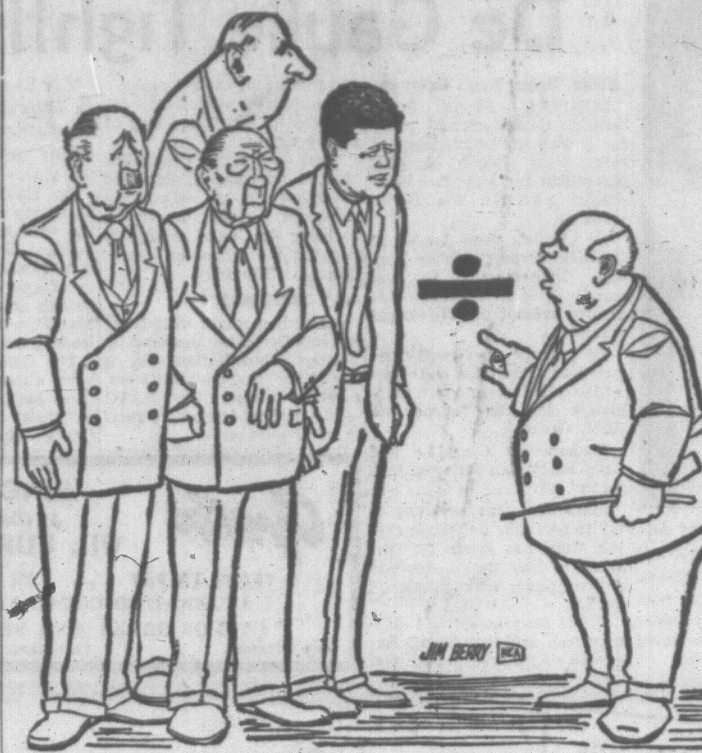

They might, however, find some interest in a comparative statement by Mr. Horace M. Albright, United States National Parks Service director in 1931. When, in that year, Great Smoky Mountains National Park was established, Mr. Albright made the forecast that it would eventually attract a million visitors a year.

Recently, the retired director has had occasion to revise his forecast. The figures last year did not show one million visitors. They totalled four million.

The optimistic predictions of 30 years ago were far too low. Similarly, British Columbia might keep in mind the trend of the last three decades as it retains and develops wilderness areas for parks use. Much as such areas are enjoyed now, the demand for them will continue to grow. The moral from Mr. Albright's Great Smoky Mountains National Park is clear. Reservation of land for future parks is an investment almost guaranteed to produce fantastic dividends.

Haggling for Fun and Profit

THERE'S a bit of the old-time horse trader in all of us, it seems. And it becomes particularly evident when governmental folk get together to do a deal.

You only need to review the Columbia power negotiations to get a good picture of the thing in action. There were the months of bargaining between Canadian and American commissions, offering this, declining that, yielding a mountain of dry ground here but gaining an acre-foot of water there; upstream investments versus downstream benefits, undertakings not to do this in return for promises to do that. It was a heroic spectacle, but it was, of course, only the beginning.

Once the major decisions were made between the two countries, it was the turn of Mr. Bennett to take on Ottawa. There were the federal offers of loans and rates, the provincial claims of this and that, the side-play of the Peace River, the balancing of American impatience against Canadian need, and above all a careful estimate of just how much of these shenanigans the public would stand for.

Losing Audience

Apparently the public capacity is endless. There seem to be no complaints about delay from the man in the street. He has not only lost confidence, he's lost interest. But the haggling and trading will go on until a bargain is struck. And the bargain may not be the only target.

The same thing is going on in the civic field. Here we see the province, in the guise of the hydro commission, working out a deal for its power building. The city holds back, so the province says maybe it could make a better price if the city would take over the bus system. But the answer to that in some quarters is, well, we might take over the bus service if you throw in the electricity distribution system.

As Our Readers See It

Independent Appraisal

We need the Black Ball Ferry line like I need a hole in the head. If the C.P.R. ever decides to modernize its line with terminals in downtown Vancouver and Nanaimo, what price Black Ball?

If we must buy the Black Ball line, let us at least have an independent appraisal made of the assets by some firm in whom we have confidence.

Profit-Sharing

Growers Wine Company who have just announced the availability of a profit-sharing plan for their employees are to be warmly commended. Such an undertaking is not only a wise but also a constructive move that can, in the long run, prove beneficial to employer, employee and consumer alike.

In short, the profit-sharing scheme could conceivably be an answer to inflated production costs which ultimately reflect so adversely on the consumer market. It may also provide the employee with a renewed incentive and greater sense of responsibility—discourage idleness and negligence and culminate in a finished product of the highest quality. In addition, wage demands would be substantially reduced, this also removing the temptation of management to capitalize on higher pay scales—the practice of elevating consumer prices threefold over and above the actual cost of the new agreements.

Profit-sharing may not be a panacea for all our economic ills, but nevertheless, it could be an ambitious move toward improved social and economic health.

FRANK E. LOCKYER.

Who's Which?

It seems we are fast reaching a state of anarchy in B.C.: in reality we have no government.

Instead we have a highly-paid (by the taxpayer) organization using the Parliament Buildings as offices (rent-free), consisting of an elected tycoon and his subjugated underlings (also elected, but ignored by the tycoon) gouging out a vast business and industrial empire in B.C., using methods no businessman would be allowed to use.

FROM PARIS

By JOSEPH ALSOP

De Gaulle and West Germany

STUDYING Paris from Washington, the American policymakers have apparently constructed a fairly sinister interpretation of President de Gaulle's recent dealings with the ever-present problem of Berlin. De Gaulle expects a bad outcome at Berlin, so this American theory runs. He wishes to be able to blame the United States for this outcome. Above all, he wishes to be free from blame himself, and thus to appear before the West Germans as the one truly dependable ally. De Gaulle's aim, in short, is to strengthen the Franco-German partnership so much that it will replace the German-American partnership.

Alsop

There may indeed be some such Machiavellian after-thoughts, intermingled with the larger considerations which have led de Gaulle to adopt a fairly disdainful hands-off posture. But that is relatively unimportant.

These after-thoughts could not have crossed the French President's mind unless he already expected the Berlin crisis to end badly.

The question, in fact, is whether de Gaulle's pessimistic expectation is well-founded. If he has rightly judged the present trend of Western policy-making, very little else matters, at least for the moment.

To begin with, the chasm that now divides Paris and Washington plainly originates in a basic difference of emphasis and viewpoint.

Deeply Worried

Washington is deeply worried about the future of Berlin, partly because American prestige will be so disastrously damaged if the American commitment to the free Berliners is not fully honored. But Washington tends to take West Germany for granted, as though the German of Konrad Adenauer would go on forever.

Paris, in contrast, is deeply concerned about West Germany as a whole, and only concerned about Berlin because the future of Berlin will affect the future of Germany. Thus de Gaulle was passionately and quite sincerely alarmed when he thought he discerned an American tendency "to give away bits of West Germany, in order to buy tranquility at Berlin."

It has to be admitted that there are grounds for this suspicion.

Bomarc's and Bases

OPPOSITION Leader Lester B. Pearson has spelled out the policy of the Liberals in regard to nuclear arms for Canada. The question was raised by reporters at a press conference in Quebec City. Mr. Pearson explained that he was opposed to Canadian possession of nuclear weapons. If Canada acquired such weapons it would be just expanding the nuclear club. He was against such an expansion. The fewer countries possessing such weapons the less likelihood of a Third World War being set off by accident.

However, Mr. Pearson said he was not against the nuclear deterrent as such. If the United States government told a Liberal government in power in Canada that it was a matter of the greatest importance that there be stationed in Canada American weapons with nuclear warheads, and made a strong case for such weapons being located in Canada, then a Liberal government would give the request very serious consideration.

This would not be the same as Canada having nuclear weapons on a base of its own in Canada, he pointed out.

Wide Attention

This policy statement attracted wide attention. When he reached Nova Scotia he had another press conference at Amherst. Here reporters questioned the accuracy of earlier reports that he would agree to allow Americans to establish bases in Canada under American control, armed and equipped with nuclear weapons.

Mr. Pearson assured the Nova Scotia newsmen that he had been accurately quoted. But he pointed out that he had not said such bases would be automatically granted if asked for—rather the government would have to give careful consideration to such a request.

The question first came up when reporters questioned Mr. Pearson about the Bomarc. Mr. Pearson indicated that he was convinced that the present Conservative government is preparing, without even telling the Canadian people, to

In his conversations with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Secretary of State Dean Rusk spontaneously introduced "European security" as a possible topic of East-West negotiations. A little later, in the quadripartite working group in Washington, the Americans spontaneously suggested that it might be wise to think about an East-West agreement permanently banning nuclear armament for West Germany's military forces.

To the Europeans as well as the Russians, "European security" means the Rapacki Plan or one of the other NATO-crippling schemes for "thin out" or "disengagement."

The fact that Rusk brought up the idea, on his own motion, caused great alarm in Bonn. So did the other proposal. In effect, it would have made the design of West Germany's defence structure subject to the Kremlin's approval.

In the ensuing commotion, the American policymakers protested that much too much was being made of ideas which were merely being played with, but had not been officially adopted.

Dangerous Thinking

Rightly or wrongly, President de Gaulle is convinced that this kind of thinking is fatally dangerous. In principle, he believes it is fatal to allow the Soviets to use Berlin as a lever for the extraction of concessions having nothing to do with Berlin. Once this practice is accepted, it can lead anywhere.

More important still, de Gaulle and the French are also convinced that it is fatal to do this for highly practical reasons having to do with the present condition of West Germany. The old, reliable, predictable German government of Konrad Adenauer will come to an end within two years. The new Germany is coming of age and becoming conscious of a new nationhood.

Now is the time, in fact, when the West Germans will choose their national course, and they may choose quite a different course from the one so long charted by Adenauer.

In these circumstances, President de Gaulle and his co-workers believe it will be appallingly risky to give the Germans the smallest ground for doubting their Western partners' total dependability in a crunch.

They consider, in short, that the future of Germany is at stake. They may exaggerate the risk, but their position is far more logical and well-founded than many people in Washington seem to suppose.

(C) 1961, New York Herald Tribune Inc.

acquire nuclear warheads under the control of the United States for the Bomarc's based in Canada.

Otherwise the government had been spending millions of the taxpayers' dollars on weapons that could operate at only a fraction of their effectiveness. He told reporters that the Liberals had information from Washington that the Bomarc B—the weapon now being installed at North Bay in Ontario and La Macaza in Quebec—was not capable of carrying non-nuclear warheads.

Less Efficient

He acknowledged that there had been reports from the company building the Bomarc that it was possible to manufacture non-nuclear warheads for the Bomarc B, but that the weapon would only operate at a fraction of its effectiveness with such warheads. This on the face of it, he suggested, was the height of foolishness.

Recently a member of the press gallery contacted the Boeing company, builders of the Bomarc. He asked for a firm and final statement as to whether the weapon was capable of utilizing non-nuclear warheads. A company spokesman replied that it was not an authority on the warhead for the Bomarc missile. The company does not design, build or supply warheads of any description for any missile and therefore had no first hand knowledge of them.

However the company did declare that it had designed the missile (the Bomarc B) on the understanding that it would be armed with nuclear warheads. The missile was designed to meet the specific requirements which the company had been told were required by a nuclear warhead.

Clear Intent

It would appear from the company's own statements that the Bomarc B was designed primarily for use with nuclear warheads. To equip it with any other warheads renders it ineffective for the defence job it is designed to carry out. As a matter of fact when the then defence minister Hon. George Pearkes announced that Bomarc's would be based in Canada he made it clear they would have nuclear warheads.

But since then an old colleague of Mr. Pearkes, Mr. Howard Green, has become secretary of state for external affairs. In that position Mr. Green—with the backing of Prime Minister Diefenbaker—has been fighting a losing battle in the United Nations for disarmament. He has flatly opposed Canada's acquiring nuclear warheads for the Bomarc missiles on the grounds that this would undermine Canada's position with the uncommitted nations, as a peace-loving nation at the UN.

Opposite View

Defence Minister Douglas Harkness, Mr. Pearkes' successor, takes the opposite view. He wants Canada to make the decision to acquire nuclear warheads for the Bomarc's and other weapons for her forces. There are indications that gradually the Canadian government is coming around to the position of accepting nuclear warheads.

The moment for decision for the Conservative government is close at hand. Early next year will see the Bomarc missiles in place and ready to be armed. Prime Minister Diefenbaker may decide to make the question an issue in the coming general election. But his decision has got to be made and made soon.

Who's Going to College?

IF I wore a hat, I'd doff it to the university student who finances his own way through college. I've always admired the young person who gets out and works during the long vacation to grubstake himself to another year. If he pitches the academic ball hard enough to knock over a scholarship or two, more power to him.

But in the last year or two, the self-propelling student has been having trouble. He has been ready and eager for a job. With unemployment high and a natural concern shown for breadwinners in families, he hasn't had quite the same job opportunities available up to a couple of summers ago.

I like the working student because, paying the shot himself, he has a stake in his courses and can be expected to dig into them a little more industriously than someone financed by a parent. It doesn't always turn out that way, but the principle is valid enough.

As President Murray G. Ross, of York University, noted the other day, the student pays in fees only about a third of what it costs a university for the services it provides him. He also pays a good hunk of dough for his room and keep while going to college, but that doesn't fatten the university. It exists on government grants, private donations and funds raised by the university itself.

Dr. Ross says, and very properly, that both need help, student and university.

If I understand him correctly, he suggests a build-up of funds for the potential university student from the time he's in Grade 9.

"I would suggest," he says, "that university scholarships be provided to students from a fund to be established by the federal government or by such a body as the Canada Council.

"Encouragement should be given to individuals, clubs and corporations (and particularly to students who receive awards from the fund), to contribute to the fund."

Started early, this would provide enough to finance the student's share of costs for his university education. Where a student fell by the wayside, the money accumulated on his behalf would return to the general pot and help somebody else.

This is all over-simplified, but I believe it gives the general idea, and it looks good to me.

Here, in Victoria, the community has shown an encouraging appreciation for scholarship with private, corporation, society and other special bursaries for students showing outstanding ability.

There isn't, however, nearly enough provided to meet all requirements. Particularly for upper classmen, the scholarship supply is low. The organizers of the Ed Savannah Memorial Scholarship, to which donations may still be made, started a campaign to give financial awards to students in third and fourth year, but much more is needed.

That makes the Ross idea more appealing. And it will appear sounder still in the next few years when the wave of post-war babies washes into college.

Both students and universities are going to need help, all kinds of help. And the need is going to be particularly acute in British Columbia and Victoria.

Out in this part of the world we have the happy and costly faculty of keeping our young people in the higher grades, including university, longer on average than in any other part of Canada.

Try these on for statistics: Of all B.C. children entering Grade 2, 63 per cent reach Grade 12, the last year in high school. Of the same Grade 2 tots, 17 per cent go to college and 9 per cent graduate.

Now relate this to the taxes you have been paying to build more schools—never more than enough to accommodate the increased student population. This all means that the universities are going to have to provide more space just to house the bodies of the growing number of students.

And don't think that any child is going to get into or through university because pappy's in the chips. My informed friends tell me that a few years ago—as I reckon time now—a person with an IQ of 110, or better, the top 25 per cent, had a good chance of making the grade in university.

It's tougher now. People with IQs of 118 up, the top 15 per cent, have a 50-50 chance of getting through first year. Those with IQs of 120, or about the top 12 per cent, have a 30-50 chance of graduating. The work is just that much harder.

Since we're already graduating 9 per cent, figure where we'll be when the new population wave hits us.

As you were saying, Dr. Ross, we need some new arrangements to finance higher education.

Eisenhower Scores U.S. 'Super-Patriots'

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Eisenhower deplores what he calls "super patriots" and the recent "rise of extremists" in the United States.

He also urged the military to shun partisan politics. In the second of a series of filmed television interviews presented Thursday night over the CBS TV network, he said of extremists:

"I don't think the United States needs super-patriots. We need patriotism, honestly practised by all of us, and we don't need these people that are more patriotic than you or anybody else."

His definition of extremists included those who would "go back to eliminating the income tax... and the rights of people to unionize... and those advocating some form of dictatorship."

It also included, Eisenhower said, those who "make radical statements and attack people of good repute who are proved patriots."

Eisenhower acknowledged that "we are really just a few minutes away from disaster any time that someone would try to initiate aggressive attack, specifically the Soviets."

But he added: "With the power that we have, the destructive power that we have and that he (Khrushchev) knows we have, I think, there, that is the thing that turns potential aggressors away from the theory of using global war to gain their ends."

Arriving to discuss arrangements for a constitutional conference for the East African colony, Maudling said the conference would not take place until early next year and if successful there would have to be many preparations for independence.

"So February independence scarcely comes within the realm of possibility," he said.

Brazil Resumes Ties With USSR

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil renewed diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union Thursday in a move apparently intended to demonstrate its freedom from U.S. domination.

After a 14-year break, Foreign Minister Francisco Santiago Dantas announced the resumption of formal ties with Russia during a tumultuous session of the chamber of deputies in Brasilia. Anti-Communist deputies almost shouted him down.

Angry congressmen—some of whom jumped to their feet with boos and shouts of "shame"—contended that the Communists already had a strong enough hold in Brazil without the presence of Soviet diplomats in Rio de Janeiro and the inland capital.

"This government is lighting one candle to God and another to the devil," one deputy shouted.

Premier Tancredo Neves said that the renewal of relations did not mean that Brazil—which is 95 per cent Roman Catholic—is selling out its democratic Christian ideals.

There has been no concession on the part of the Brazilian government, said the president, who took office Sept. 8 with the promise that he would follow a foreign policy of "pure tradition."

Relations with the Soviet Union have been a hot potato for Brazilian politicians since President Enrico Gaspar Dutra broke with Moscow in 1947 because Soviet newspaper attacks on him and Brazilian army generals.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Britain's Unconservative Tories

LONDON—One noticeable thing about Britain's Conservative government—it is not conservative.

To name but three of their measures that have brought about important changes in life here:

The Licensing Bill, which has brought longer hours and removed many of the illogical drink restrictions.

The Betting and Gaming Act, which has paved the way for betting shops and gambling places and has put gambling in general on a more realistic basis.

The Obscenity Bill, immediate effect of which was to let Lady Chatterly in—but which has the long-term effect of at last clarifying the legal aspects of obscenity.

Passing on from these and other radical changes, the government is now having a crack at something that would really give this country a different look.

Minister of Transport Ernest Marples

has set up an inquiry into the problems and cost of switching Britishers from driving on the left to driving on the right.

Though it might seem simple enough to merely tell folks here to move over to the other side of the road, the suggested switch is almost as full of problems as that other one the government is looking into—changing from pounds, shillings and pence to a decimal system.

There would be the obvious trouble of converting vehicles already on the road from right-hand to left-hand drive, plus motor factories having to do the change for future vehicles for the home market.

But it is much more complicated than that: Take the nation's buses, for instance. Their entrances and exits and the staircase on double-deckers are all designed for pulling up at the left-hand curb. What a rebuilding job that would entail!

Signposts and traffic lights—these would all have to be changed. In numerous towns the entire traffic flow would have to be reversed.

An authoritative guess at the cost of the change is something in the region of $100,000,000.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Ignore the Neighbors and Water

After the recent heavy rains it would seem unlikely that anyone would be writing about the watering of garden plants, but that is our subject today.

Modern home designs embody a modification of the Spanish patio, originally an inner court of a Spanish villa open to the sky.

As a concession to the climate, the patio in the northern latitude is usually partly or completely covered.

Since the overall design of these homes is intended to be enhanced by the foliage of plants we are compelled to use plant material of an evergreen nature on the patio area.

The leaves of evergreen, whether needle-like as the conifers or broad like the laurel, continue to give off moisture throughout the year and must always have sufficient moisture at the roots to replace the losses.

EASY TO LOSE

When the soil around the roots because so dry that the water lost is greater than that picked up by the roots, the plants suffer drought conditions. It is just as easy to lose an evergreen to drought in winter as it is in the heat of summer.

When wind moves over the foliage of plants the water loss from the leaves is increased. We should probably be amazed if we knew the amount of moisture given off by an evergreen in a winter gale.

Even when the plants are somewhat sheltered and not in the direct path of wind, there is sufficient air movement to double the normal rate of transpiration.

Therefore, the work this weekend should include the checking of the soil moisture conditions around the patio plantings, in planters, and along borders adjacent to the foundations of buildings.

If the soil is not wet, as wet as the soil in the open garden, it is time to take action.

Couple up the hose and, despite the neighbors' veiled hints as to your sanity, soak the area thoroughly and save your plants.

National Ex Drops Plans To Revive Privateer Mine

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Hope of reviving the old Privateer mine property at Zeballos as a copper producer appears to have faded with announcement that National Explorations Ltd. has refused to take up a share option of 100,000 shares at 30 cents with New Privateer Mines Ltd.

The agreement under which National Ex took up 100,000 shares in early October and had a further 400,000 optioned has now been cancelled.

At the property, about half of the Privateer group of claims and the adjoining Ubell claims, a drilling program carried on over the past two months has apparently proved disappointing to National Ex. It had been hoped that the program would prove up about 200,000 tons of commercial grade copper ore.

Meanwhile, strong rumors continue to circulate about another Island mining operation, the Western Mines Ltd. Buttle Lake property.

Although the company, in which Consolidated Mining and Smelting holds a 28 per cent interest, has so far made no announcements, mining circles say that the latest assay ran to 4 per cent copper along with high values in zinc.

A report to shareholders of Groves Wine Co. Ltd., from managing director E. C. Warner states that November will be the biggest month in the history of the company with shipments to eastern Canada up 75 per cent.

Over the first six months of the company's current fiscal year, Mr. Warner adds, sales have increased moderately although Bass's Ale and Guinness Stout, for which Groves' holds the Canadian sales agency, have not enjoyed as much progress as had been hoped for. Company has also become exclusive western distributor for three new "waters"—Derrier, Charrier and Contrexeville.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting is expected to report second half net income on a par with the same period last year, but it indicated that with the lower results of the first half net income for the year will be down from the $1.43 a share of 1960.

The lower profit is blamed on lower lead and zinc prices. Overall expenditures for 1961 are expected to be lower than last year's $16.5 million dollars. There has been no estimate of next year's expenditures pending a decision on the Pine Point Mine property.

Cominco directors meet early next month to consider dividend payments. On the basis of the earnings report the dividend is expected to remain at the $1 total paid in recent years.

There appears to have been little progress made in the talks between Canada and Britain over uranium contracts. The current series has ended with no announcement of when further talks can be expected.

Renegotiation of the $8 a pound price for 12,000 tons of uranium has been under way for some time now and the only thing that has emerged is that Britain appears willing to take the full amount but refuses to pay the price which Canada has set as a minimum—an amount which keeps open higher-cost as well as low-cost mines.

Announcement from Noranda Mines Ltd. states that it intends to assume more responsibility for marketing its own products through a wholly-owned subsidiary, Noranda Sales Corp.

By mutual agreement with British Metal Corp. of London, Noranda will take over at the end of the year marketing of copper and some other metals in Canada, the U.S. and Japan. British Metal will continue as sole agent for Noranda's copper, selenium and tellurium in other parts of the world during 1962 and then Noranda will assume total responsibility for sales beginning Jan. 1, 1963.

FOREST FIRE RECORD SET

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal forestry department has reported that 1961 was Canada's most destructive forest fire year on record.

More than 9,000,000 acres of forests were ravaged by forest fires during 1961. Between April and October there were 9,911 forest fires with the average area destroyed per fire amounting to 916 acres.

Worst previous fire season was in 1919 when 7,590,000 acres of forest were burned by 5,223 fires.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Cheri Shockley, age 12, of Spokane, Wash., for her question:

What are cold-blooded animals?

The term cold-blooded animal brings to mind the clammy toad and the slippery eel, the scaly fish and the slithering snake. Most of us tend to think that these humble creatures are far outnumbered by the so-called warm-blooded animals. But this is far from true. Remember, that the octopuses and the insects, the sponges and all the single-celled animals are also cold-blooded creatures. In fact, most of nature's children are cold-blooded and always have been. The only warm-blooded animals are birds and mammals and, in the long story of life on earth, they arrived only recently.

Every animal needs warmth to keep his body processes going and remain active. However, at the boiling point of water, the protoplasm which fills every living cell is destroyed, so an animal cannot use too much warmth. The first animals got their needed warmth from the water and, much later, some of them took their warmth from the air and the ground. Most of the animals in the world today still depend for their necessary body heat upon their surroundings.

The method has advantages and drawbacks. A fish can survive being frozen solid. But a lizard cannot sweat to cool himself from the desert sun. As a rule, these animals are about one degree cooler than their surroundings. The natural temperature which your body tries to maintain is about 98 degrees—and the air seldom gets this hot. Frogs and toads, snails and salamanders seem cool to the touch—which is why we call them cold-blooded creatures. But a lizard basking in the desert sun may have a body temperature of 100 degrees or more.

Body Temperature Varies

As a rule, the so-called cold-blooded creatures, then, are merely a little cooler than our bodies. But if we get as hot as they sometimes do, we would be down with raging fevers. For this reason, it is more correct to call them creatures of varying body temperatures. If you wish to be impressive, you may call them the poikilotherms—in which case you would be homiotherms.

When meeting big words of this sort, Andy always grabs them boldly by the tail and tackles the last section first. In both poikilotherms and homiotherms, the last section means temperature, as it does in thermostat. The poikilo part means varied and a poikilotherm, a animal can vary its temperature from very cold to very warm. The homio section means alike or similar. A homiotherm animal has a more or less even body temperature.

Changing temperature speeds up the activity and the body processes of a poikilotherm creature. In cold water, the fishes need much more food to stay active. The snake is busiest in warm, tropical weather and gets loggy and lazy in the cold. Bees perish when the temperature in the hive falls below freezing, but the pesky bumblebees can survive 14 degrees below freezing. Certain fish can be frozen solid, when even the heart stops. But if the temperature is raised gently, they can revive to swim another day.

Andy sends a Hammond's Library World Atlas to Peter Zois, age 10, of Somerville, Mass., for his question:

How many Solar Systems are there?

A few years ago, we had no proof that there were any other solar systems in the world, besides our own. Since then, a few planets have been spotted in photographs taken by our far-seeing telescopes. And a planet, of course, means that a star has a solar system. The newly discovered planets are whoppers, much, much bigger than our giant Jupiter—which means that there are most likely countless planets too small for our telescopes to spot.

We can count just a few other solar systems for certain, but the astronomers estimate that there are many millions of them. Old Sol is not the only parent star with a family of planets. Some experts think that more than half of the 100 billions of stars in our Galaxy have planets—and there are billions of other galaxies in the universe.

Grey Cup Fever Thing of Past?

TORONTO (CP)—Whatever happened to that fall malady, Grey Cup fever? Has a cure crept in to knock flat all those one-time seemingly carefree fans who used to quit their jobs, hock their possessions and leave home every November for the annual trek in quest of Lord Grey's historic basin?

For instance, there will be some big gaps in the Grey Cup parade in Toronto Dec. 2.

Calgary and Edmonton will not be represented. And Saskatchewan likely won't have an entry.

Calgary officials said the parade would be too commercial and Edmonton said they had better use their money than spending it on a float.

The Saskatchewan Roughriders football team backed out, the city of Regina wasn't invited and the Saskatchewan government hasn't made up its mind.

Grey Cup festival chairman Richard Brown said he didn't see "why they slate the parade and slate us when all we're trying to do is do a job for the city of Toronto and the Grey Cup festival generally."

Bob Stanley, vice-chairman, said, "It sounds as if Calgary and Edmonton are both in the same situation—they like to use their money locally."

NO HARD FEELINGS
"We're disappointed they're not coming, but there are no hard feelings."

R. A. Kramer, president of the Roughriders, said in Regina: "We have decided to forget all about it, because we think the thing is being commercialized. We don't agree at all with the entry fee of $200 to get a float into the parade and because it is completely ridiculous to pay a whole bunch of Toronto hand musicians whether they appear in the parade or not."

"Somebody down there is just trying to make some easy money out of the parade and we have decided we just won't have anything to do with it."

Herb Capozzi of British Columbia Lions said "we're disappointed that apparently a fee is to be charged but we consider the Grey Cup parade an important event and won't boycott it."

Vancouver and British Columbia will also have floats in the parade.

Montreal Alouettes, traditionally, will have their high-kicking majorettes march in the parade, but there will be no floats from either the team or the city.

Winnipeg, with their Blue Bombers safely in the playoff Dec. 2, were the most enthusiastic. M. J. G. McCullen, general manager of the Manitoba Tourist and Convention Association, says their float is built and ready to be shipped.

"Marrying"—can it make a whisky taste better?

"Judge for yourself," says Tom Chant, who 'marries' our whisky.

"I blend matured whiskies, then leave them lie in the cask till they're formed into one light taste. That's 'marrying'. Tricky. I have to get the timing just right, keep the whiskies cool, undisturbed, let them make their perfect taste.

"We're proud of Bonded Stock at Gooderham & Worts. It's very popular—has been for generations. And when you taste Bonded Stock, you'll appreciate the skill and craftsmanship that go into making it the whisky it is."

CURLERS' CORNER

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Officials of Vancouver's Totem Bonspiel, which moves to a close today, made a big thing of it when they announced some time ago that a new draw system would be put into effect at this year's rockfest.

Pioneered by Saskatoon doctor George Beall, it works similar to the flight system used in match play golf tournaments.

The Beall draw, Totem officials said, was designed to equalize competition by keeping the strongest rinks in their own company.

So far, no arguments on that point. But the system, along with the decision by bonspiel officials to award only prestige trophies in the championship rounds, also brought to light that some curlers prefer gold to glory.

The action of some rinks in Vancouver, as reported by The Canadian Press, makes it quite obvious.

Two rinks defaulted games in the second round of the championship event and two others did the same thing in the championship secondary. It caused, says CP, "a ripple of unrest around the Totem Bonspiel."

I guess it would.

The defaulting rinks dropped into the bottom two secondary events and gave them a crack at merchandise prizes, none of which—as mentioned above—are offered in the championship event.

But there's more

Nobody Wanted to Take the Victory

Two rinks actually got into a hassle over who would take the loss in a double-default.

"Scheduling of one Wednesday draw," Canadian Press reported, "was held up for an hour when the Bill Bennett rink and the Charlie Cook foursome from Vancouver got into a hassle over which would take the loss in a double default. Eventually, Cook took the victory."

The bonspiel's prize committee this year decided no rink would be permitted to win more than one prize. The new draw—where all 160 entries started in the Totem event only—was put into use. (Last year every rink started in both the Totem and Evergreen events.)

A championship playoff was added to give the top rinks in the primary Totem event more games—in effect, it became the grand aggregate chase. A rink sweeping through undefeated in the Totem might play only seven games, but it could win five more by sweeping the playoff, too.

Ted Glover of Vancouver, chairman of the prize committee, said his committee felt a trophy was all that was essential to satisfy the better curlers.

Glover and his committee undoubtedly share different views on the matter today, because, as CP said: "In future prizes would be added to the championship events."

And if you've been wondering, this year's merchandise prize list has a total value of $7,500. That's divided up between the last four surviving rinks in each of the eight events outside the championship.

THE SHORT DELIVERY

Next Thursday is the deadline for entries in the ladies' club playdowns at Victoria Curling Club. Playoffs start Dec. 4 and will be climaxed by a double round-robin final between representatives of the evening, afternoon and commercial ladies' leagues. Men's entry deadline is Dec. 1.

Vice-skips of some rinks at VCC are still failing to sign score cards. Failure to do so results in a loss to both rinks. The VCC directorate is hoping to establish definite club colors of green and gold. Eventually, the club hopes, every curler would dress alike for regular club games. That's the practice in some Prairie rinks, and it certainly looks impressive from behind the glass.

Packers in Command After Clawing Lions

DETROIT (AP) — Green Bay Packers, mostly stuck in thick mud except for two touchdown drives, took a firm command in the National Football League's western division race Thursday with a 17-9 victory over Detroit Lions.

The Packers pushed over their winning touchdown on Jim Taylor's one-yard run on the first play of the final quarter and increased their lead to 2½ games over the second-place Lions.

Paul Hornung, on weekend leave from the army, added a field goal in the final 38 seconds.

A crowd of 55,662, which sat through a steady rain, saw Hornung come up with the big play in the touchdown drive that enabled the Packers to pull out the victory after they trailed twice.

The NFL's scoring leader snared a 26-yard pass from Bart Starr that advanced the ball to the Detroit four. Taylor scored three plays later.

The Lions moved the ball better than the Packers until they got in touchdown range. Detroit, virtually out of contention now with only four games left, was forced to settle for three field goals by Jim Martin from 13, 34, and 16 yards.

The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Army team will march out some added offensive punch tonight.

The army takes on Pontiac Chiefs in one of two Esquimalt and District Hockey League games at the Sport Centre.

Victoria College Vikings and Navy trade checks in the first game, starting at 7:45 p.m.

The PPCLI squad, currently sharing second place with the Chiefs, will be bolstered by the appearance of Pat McNeil. A standout scorer with last year's Army squad, McNeil has been sidelined for much of the season through injury.

Canada Series For Curlers Slated for TV

HALIFAX (CP) — The CBC has announced plans to televise a seven-week series of curling competitions beginning Saturday, Dec. 9.

A spokesman here said the competitions, to be known as Cross-Canada Curling will be videotaped in three Canadian cities. Provincial entries will in most cases be those who participated in the 1960 Canadian curling championships, including Hec Gervais' winning Alberta rink.

First and second-round matches will be filmed in Dartmouth, N.S., Toronto and Winnipeg. The filmed competitions with commentary will be condensed into one hour programs. These will involve a single match; sometimes two. The television series will continue into playoff matches, all to be staged at Toronto.

The final championship match will be shown Jan. 20.

SOME KICK

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — The longest punt ever recorded in the National Football League sailed 94 yards. It was kicked by Wilbur (Pete) Henry of Canton in a game against Akron, Oct. 28, 1923.

Texas Hosts Bowl Battle

NEW YORK (CP) — Texas bolted into the host spot in the Cotton Bowl Thursday, blasting rival Texas A and M 23-0 in a rebound from its 6-0 upset by TCU that knocked Texas out of the No. 1 spot in U.S. college football ratings.

Texas victory gave it a 9-1 regular season record and assured it of the host spot in the Cotton Bowl. Arkansas can tie Texas in the conference standings, but Texas gets the nod by virtue of its 33-7 regular season verdict over Arkansas.

UNITED PLAYS SATURDAY

There's Worry On Boot Front

On the eve of one of the most important weekends of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season, two team managers can be heard moaning softly over personnel problems:

● Victoria United's Wallace Milligan thinks he might have a problem during Saturday's all-important meeting with Vancouver Fire fighters at Royal Athletic Park.

● New Westminster's Jack Spry, who pushes his defending champion Royals into another "big one" against Columbus on Sunday, knows he has a problem.

United is running in second place, one point behind Columbus and one ahead of Fire fighters and Canadians. The improving Royals are four points off the pace.

Victoria, said Milligan Friday, may have to play without the services of centre forward Volker Stoldt. The big playmaker has been a key figure in United's improved offensive displays in recent games.

DOUBTFUL STARTER
A touch of the flu puts Stoldt in the "doubtful" bracket until game time (2 p.m.).

Spry's problem is of a more definite nature: Gogie Stewart.

The speedy forward from Nanaimo, a mainstay of Royals' attack, has come to a parting of the ways with Westminster. Spry said this week relations between Stewart and the club were "at a pretty low level."

Stewart can be had, Spry said, "if a reasonable deal could be made."

In addition to the United Firefighters and Columbus-Royals games, PCSL schedule this weekend also calls for Vancouver Canadians to play North Shore at Callister Park on Saturday.

All Victoria and District League teams play Sunday. Heading the list of fixtures is Gorge Hotel's meeting with Evcoas at Bullen Park.

Gorge, a well-conditioned team that has been sparked by the performances of such as Bob Swinton, Bill Munroe and Roy St. Denis, moves into this week's schedule with a two-point lead over Hourigan's Kickers and Victoria West.

Kickers play Brodies Bakery at Heywood Avenue Park, while Vic West faces Esquimalt at Central Park. Other matches are Saanich Thistles and Heaneys at Reynolds Road Park; Canadian Scottish at Duncan and Ladysmith at Nanaimo.

All games start at 2 p.m.

Young Kidd's Win May Alter Theory

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Young Canadian Bruce Kidd showed a liking for a hilly course and sloshed through the mud in 32 minutes, 2.6 seconds Thursday to win the National Amateur Athletic Union 10,000 metre cross-country championship.

The 18-year-old Kidd, accustomed to racing on flat courses around Toronto, won by nearly 50 yards over John Guyknecht of the Baltimore Olympic Club, whose time was 32.08.

John Macy of the University of Houston Track and Field Club, team titlist the third straight year, was third in 32.32.

Kidd's victory may usher in a new era of cross-country racing, said last year's champion Al Lawrence of Houston who missed Thursday's race because of an injury.

Lawrence explained there is a belief that top cross-country runners have to be men of some maturity but the convincing victory of the teenage Canadian may change this idea.

I'm in Full Charge, Says Staff Smythe

TORONTO (CP) — A three-man syndicate headed by Stafford Smythe Thursday bought control of Maple Leaf Gardens for approximately $2,000,000.

Smythe told a press conference that control was acquired through purchase of 45,000 shares of stock from his father, Conn Smythe, founder and president of the Gardens, home of the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs.

Stafford Smythe, 40, became president of the Gardens, replacing his father, Conn Smythe is new chairman of the board of directors.

Associated with Stafford Smythe in the purchase were sportsmen Harold Ballard and John Bassett, chairman and publisher of The Telegram and chairman of the board of CFTO-TV. Mr. Smythe said each man bought one-third of the controlling shares.

At a meeting of the board of directors Thursday, Ballard was appointed head of the "silver seven" — the Gardens' hockey committee.

Smythe said his first projects as head of the Gardens will include a review of its ticket distribution arrangements, television contracts, and need for additional seats.

Smythe ruled out the possibility that he would operate with Mr. Ballard and Mr. Bassett as a "golden three" directing the Gardens' "silver seven."

"I'm in complete charge of the Gardens," he said.

Tanks Patrol As Mobs Riot

(From Times News Services)

SANTO DOMINGO — Tanks moved through the streets of the newly-renamed Dominican Republic capital and jet planes flew overhead Thursday night to break up mobs looting Trujillo-owned properties.

President Joaquin Balaguer proclaimed a dusk-to-dawn curfew after the most violent rioting since assassination removed dictator Rafael L. Trujillo's iron control.

The troops cleared the streets of the capital and patrolled through the night amid fears of continuing new outbursts of vengeance against the Trujillos, all of whom have now fled the island.

The city—changed Thursday from Ciudad Trujillo to its ancient name of Santo Domingo by Congress—remained tense.

Explosions cracked throughout the night. But there were few persons on the streets and it appeared the bombs were set off by troops as a warning to vandals.

Balaguer proclaimed the curfew after mobs ranged through the streets to strike at anything that smacked of the Trujillos and their associates.

Reuters news agency said several persons were killed in the riots.

JETS CALLED OUT
Tanks and Vampire jet planes were called out to put down the rioters. Soldiers removed all weapons and bullets from gun stores. The president blamed the violence on the Communists.

The ransacking of properties owned by the Trujillos, who ran this Caribbean country as a private preserve for 31 years, came as the last members of the family fled into exile.

Among the last to leave was the late dictator's 96-year-old mother, Julia Trujillo. The hostile crowd at the airport fell silent as she was hoisted aboard a plane in a wheelchair for a flight to Miami.

President Joaquin Balaguer made a radio speech Thursday night appealing to Dominicans for confidence in his government's efforts to reform the constitution.

MACMILLAN MAKES STATEMENT

Secret Report Stirs Parliament

U.K. DENIES BLAME FOR REPORT 'LEAK'

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government has given no copy to anyone outside the Common Market of the statement which Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath made to Common Market foreign ministers in Paris Oct. 10, a foreign office spokesman said today.

ECM Bargaining Takes Hard Line

LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth apparently can hold little hope for long-term guarantees of markets in western Europe on preferential terms should Britain join the Common Market.

This view was being advanced here today as officials gathered in Brussels this week for the detailed hard bargaining on Britain's application to join the community formed by France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries.

In effect, the six-country community is confronting Britain with a choice between close economic ties with the continent or the Commonwealth.

This tough line—regarded as an opening play by some Commonwealth sources—apparently derives from a feeling among some Common Market countries that granting sizable concessions to the Commonwealth would upset the European community's equilibrium.

There also is a feeling within the community that such concessions would constitute unjustifiable discrimination.

against the other third parties such as the United States, Japan and Latin American countries.

Instead of long-term guarantees, expectations are the community will stress its belief in liberal trading policies generally and offer temporary measures aimed at dealing with immediate difficulties.

Reports from Brussels say Britain has accepted the structure of the common external tariff. This is the system of import duties involving the entire community which is being planned to replace the national tariffs on community members.

SEEK FREE TRADE

When this process is completed, trade among members will be completely free, but outsiders will have to clear the hurdle of a uniform tariff protecting the group as a whole.

This week's negotiations are dealing solely with two problems—the common external tariff and the Commonwealth problem. The thorny agricultural problem is being left over until early next year.

During today's Brussels discussions, attention was on the exceptions to the common tariff Britain has requested.

Edward Heath, the Lord Privy Seal and chief of the British Common Market team, has asked for the removal or reduction of tariffs on aluminum, lead, zinc, wood pulp and newsprint. These items make up a big portion of Canada's exports to Europe.

It is understood that the Commonwealth aspect of the problem was only touched on. This will likely develop into the central problem before the week is out.

wild trip it wrecked two other cars, demolished two small buildings and ripped corner out of a home. Charles Boyer, owner of last car hit, leaped aboard bulldozer and turned off power. (AP Wirephoto.)

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan will be confronted with a series of probing questions in Parliament Tuesday on reports of a leak to the United States of a "secret" speech made in Paris to the six Common Market countries.

Present indications are the British leader will use the Tuesday question period to make a major statement on Commonwealth consultations during Britain's negotiations to join the European economic community.

Stories that the U.S. had obtained the text of Britain's Oct. 10 statement came only days after Finance Minister Donald Fleming had renewed Canada's attempt to get the full details of the mother country's opening position in the bargaining with her European neighbors.

Whitehall sources took great pains today to stress that the Americans did not obtain the statement from British sources.

This, however, will not likely head off an anticipated parliamentary storm Tuesday.

SPEECH LEAKS OUT

The reports published here today say the speech was leaked to the U.S. state department by a member of the six-country community formed by France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries.

This was the statement delivered by Edward Heath, Lord Privy Seal and chief of Britain's negotiating team, setting out the problems which would have to be overcome if Britain is to join the Common Market.

If the reports that the Americans have the full text are true—and there is little inclination in the British capital to discount them—the government will be faced with a new controversy over its method of briefing Commonwealth governments on progress in Common Market talks.

Finance Minister Fleming left London a few days ago without a copy of the speech. Twice in the last 10 days, Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys defended the decision to keep the speech secret.

Commonwealth sources discounted the danger of leaks. They advance the view that Britain was trying to establish the principle that the negotiations were purely a concern for the British government. Members of the Commonwealth would be kept generally informed, but the precise details on the day-to-day negotiations would be withheld.

If the Americans now have the Paris speech, Britain's position on Commonwealth consultations would appear to be completely undermined.

Youth Centre Studied at Duncan

DUNCAN — A $100,000 youth and community centre is being considered here by the Duncan Rotary Club.

The plan calls for the construction of a building large enough to provide a meeting place for sea and army cadets, scouts and cubs and other groups.

It would be built on a site adjacent to the curling rink on James Street.

Many people feel the project has merit as it would place all youth activities under one roof.

But whether all youth organizations would agree to use one building is a question which is yet to be determined.

DUNCAN — Three candidates so far have entered the election race for two vacant council seats here.

Ald. Hamish Mutter, manager of Cowichan Creamery, will seek re-election, and James Patterson, a local contractor who was defeated by three votes last year, is running again.

The third, R. J. Mason, retired CPR employee, is a newcomer to municipal politics.

Big Firms Blamed

DUNCAN—Cowichan Creamery Association manager Hamish Mutter has blamed some large feed firms for the lack of stable poultry prices.

He said their policy of encouraging more and more people to enter into poultry farming will gradually ruin this branch of agriculture.

It is leading to over-production, he said.

Unless some counter measures are taken to curb the promotion ideas of large feed firms, warned Mr. Mutter, operators of poultry farms will soon face the most serious crisis in many years.

'They Always Seem to Wait Until Somebody Dies'—Commissioner

CAMPBELL RIVER — Apparently somebody has to die in an accident before traffic lights will be installed at two key points in the village, Campbell River Commissioner

Don Corker said after a letter was received from the B.C. department of highways.

Council had asked for the installation of lights at the corner of the Island Highway and St. Ann's Road, and at Island Highway and Brewster Lake Road.

In reference to the request for St. Ann's light, the district engineer wrote that traffic at this intersection is light "and falls somewhat short of filling signal volume warrants." The Brewster Lake Road light received similar treatment.

Commissioner Corker said there had been minor accidents every day, he said.

"But they always seem to wait until somebody dies before they do anything about it."

FEEL YOUNG AGAIN

Don't Lose Your Youthful Energy Too Soon

Stomachs constantly harassed with inferior, inadequate, and indigestible meals become touchy.

So, does a brain that is constantly undernourished. The brain is an organ of the body, just as the liver or lungs, and is interlaced with infinitesimal, threadlike nerves.

The brain in a tired, undernourished, and ill-cared-for body is most assuredly going to be the brain with the greatest amount of irritability.

A brain has to be well nourished to be emotionally stable. Dr. Karl Menninger believes that food power helps brain power.

An abused, undernourished, harassed body generally houses a mind incapable of optimum thinking and reasoning power.

As the central power station of the body, the brain must be kept in top physical condition through natural means so its mental activities can be controlled.

Unhealthy thought habits have a pretty hard time dwelling in a contented body.

The older a person gets, the better-quality food he needs to keep him trim and healthy. His metabolism rate slows down, and consequently he needs less of the fuel foods.

Fats, sugars, and starches clog up his arteries and make him overweight.

The overweights die off twice as fast as their thin brothers.

Some foods which you should never eat are: cream soups, very fat meats, fat fish, hot breads, pancakes, waffles, coffee cakes, muffins, doughnuts, creamy desserts, rich cakes, or cookies, salad dressings, rich gravies. These are high-fat, high-cholesterol foods.

SOUPS. Bouillon, fat-free vegetable soups, and vegetable broths.

LEAN MEATS, FISH AND POULTRY. Broiled, roasted, baked, or boiled.

EGGS. Limit these to two a day, including those used in cooking.

MILK AND MILK PRODUCTS. One pint or more of skimmed milk or buttermilk (go easy on whole milk), dry cottage cheese.

VEGETABLES. All, cooked or raw, especially the green and yellow vegetables rich in vitamin A—beet greens, chard, carrots, kale, and mustard greens.

FRUITS. All, raw, cooked, dried or canned. Use citrus fruits or tomatoes daily.

SALADS. Any fruit or vegetable salad, raw or cooked, and gelatin salads. Serve with boiled or low-fat dressings. For example, one of lemon juice, herb-vinegar and spices.

The juice from canned okra makes a satisfactory substitute for oils in salads.

CEREALS. Millet seed porridge for a cooked cereal; new protein dry cereals.

BREAD. Whole wheat, oatmeal or rye (but only if you trust).

DESSERTS. Fruits, junket puddings made with skimmed milk and without egg yolks (unless you have not had your limit of two eggs for this day), fruit whips made with skim milk powder and gelatin desserts.

BEVERAGES. Tea, coffee, powdered skim milk, tomato juice, fruit or vegetable juices.

By eating these foods with their plentiful proteins, vitamins and minerals, you can make your meals into an adventure in good eating.

Dr. George Morris Pierol says that if people would only apply the nutritional knowledge that is available to them, they could increase their average life span by at least 10 per cent.

Premature old age is not a natural process, but the result of years and years of cumulative nutritional deficiencies.

Balance your eating with foods rich in proteins, vitamins and minerals. Cut down on those fats, sugars and starches.

And you can slow down the premature aging of your body and live a lot longer than you think!

McPHILLIPS PREDICTION

Federal Election In Fall of 1962

The next federal election will be in the early fall of 1962, Victoria MP A. deB. McPhillips predicted Thursday night.

He also predicted the New Democratic Party will replace the Liberals as the official opposition in Parliament.

Mr. McPhillips was addressing the annual meeting of the Victoria Progressive Conservative Association.

PENSION BOOST

He said he believed there will be a redistribution of seats in Parliament before the election, and that there would be another increase in old-age pensions before the vote.

While he sees a bright future for the New Democratic Party, Mr. McPhillips said its leader, former Saskatchewan Premier Tommy Douglas, will have to tread carefully lest "the labor bosses give him the old heave-ho."

'SWELL HEAD'

Mr. McPhillips also had some unkind words for former Bank of Canada governor James Coyne who left his job in a fierce fight with Conservative policies this year.

He said Mr. Coyne was "the biggest swell head" he had met.

"That man seemed to think he knew everything," said Mr. McPhillips.

He said the Coyne incident was only blown up by the Liberals who went to "the old men of the Senate and got them all steamed up."

Argentina Seeks Canadian Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina will be aiming to lay the groundwork for increased Argentine trade with Canada when he comes here Monday to begin a four-day state visit.

The Argentine Embassy this week circulated among reporters a table of figures showing that Canadian sales to Argentina last year were more than five times as great as Canadian purchases from the South American republic. Exports totalled $19,363,519 and imports $3,611,419.

Harold Foley Heads Heart Fund Drive

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Foley, former vice-president of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company, has been named chairman of the 1962 British Columbia heart fund campaign.

Long Live King Orry! He'll Add Class to Fairs

By DON INGHAM

A young Scottish monarch came to Victoria today to help Joseph L. Saville, Sidney cattleman and former Cobble Hill dairy farmer, build up a championship Ayrshire herd. He is Rottenrow King Orry, an Ayrshire bull born Feb. 21, 1960, in Mauchline, Ayrshire (of course) Scotland, who will become herd sire at Mr. Saville's farm at 1895 John Road.

He was bought for Mr. Saville in Scotland last year, but arrived in Canada only a few months ago. Mr. Saville picked him up last week in Howick, Que., while on a buying trip. Orry arrived here this morning in a railroad boxcar accompanied by 17 other fine Ayrshires, including cows, heifers, a bullock, and one nimble calf.

They will join the 13 cattle already at the farm, and next year will be all set to compete in several classifications.

Emphasis will be on breeding and showing. "I don't plan to ship any milk," he said today at the

E & N Railway freight yard while loading his new charges on truck for the last leg of the trip to their new home.

He was well known for his fine Ayrshire dairy herd near Cobble Hill, on the Trans-Canada Highway, which he sold in January. It was suggested that having worked a lifetime at raising stock, now he planned to enjoy it.

"I've always enjoyed it," he said, "but maybe you're right. I guess I'm going to enjoy it a lot more."

Most of the newcomers were sired by a bull called Neverfear, of the same blood line as King Orry, and several of them are due to calve in August.

"They were bought intentionally as cattle ready for showing with their progeny in the fall fairs," Mr. Saville said. "Putting a show string together isn't done by accident."

The newcomers cost about $7,000, and left Toronto Saturday night.

But it wasn't as easy as putting the cattle in the car, nailing it shut, and unloading them here.

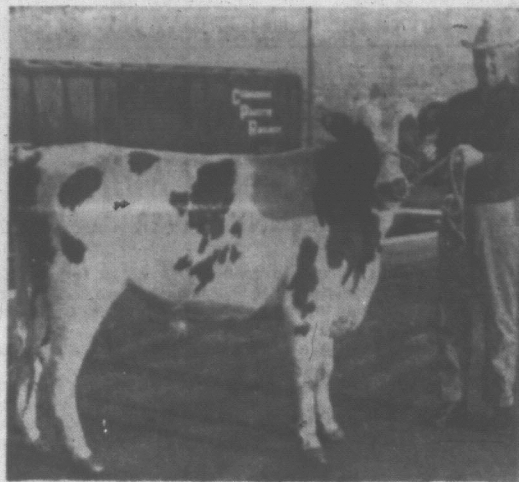

All had to be fed, all had to have water, and the cows had to be milked, and the man responsible for their care was 66-year-old Roy Cameron, who dosed down in the car in Toronto, and was not able to pack his suitcase until this afternoon.

His sleeping bag and supplies were on one of the two decks built just above head level at each end of the car, and the cattle provided the warmth.

"I've been nursemaiding cows for delivery all my life," he said. "Most trips are by train, but three years ago I took 55 head to Venezuela by boat."

Experienced stockman that he is, he has always preferred handling machinery, and spent 10 years demonstrating farm equipment in South Africa, between 1922 and 1932.

He gives credit for a long, active, and healthy life in his trade to an early, early lesson, which he learned well and has never forgotten: "Never, never, never make friends with a bull. He will be the one that will get you."

Cattleman Joe Saville welcomes blue-blood bull.

Beef has gone up about 10 cents a pound on some choice cuts and may go even higher in a few months.

An official of Canada Packers blamed the price boost on the export of Canadian cattle to the United States.

A total of 310,000 head of cattle were shipped to the U.S. this year compared to 133,000 in 1960, he said.

In September of last year he also received a Bank of Montreal Canadian Centennial scholarship of $750 for first-year university study. Terry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chew Chung Leung, is in his second year at Victoria College specializing in mathematics.

FOR VICTORIA BIRTHDAY

Centennial Stamp Studied in Ottawa

Issue of a special postage stamp to mark Victoria's centenary next year is under study, Canada's Postmaster General William Hamilton said here today.

Mr. Hamilton said that personally he favors the idea.

"Normally on the 100th anniversary of a city we would not issue a postage stamp," he said. "But when it comes to a provincial capital that in my opinion is entirely different."

"We are in the process of taking a pretty careful look at it. I won't say there will be one, but I certainly hope so."

He suggested that the stamp might be issued next Aug. 2, actual date of Victoria's incorporation as a city in 1862.

INSPECTION

Mr. Hamilton was here to inspect local postal operations. He was in the Victoria Post Office at 7:30 a.m. for a talk to letter carriers, and he also served behind the counter to get patrons' reactions to the service here.

"I'm still trying to find somebody with any complaint anywhere here—either sour in the job or sour in the service," said Mr. Hamilton.

He said the Victoria postal service was "a remarkable operation."

"The thing that hit me was the spirit and enthusiasm of the people operating it," he said.

Mr. Hamilton said his department has just started a new process for assessing complaints and correcting the faults that caused them. All complaints—there are about 300,000 a year involving the four billion letters mailed in Canada—are fed through a computer, analyzed, and faults traced down.

NO SPLIT

Mr. Hamilton did not involve himself directly in the current Ottawa-B.C. dispute over the Columbia River power project, but he repeated the statement he made in Vancouver earlier this week that there is no split in the federal cabinet on the matter.

He said that Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton was the spokesman for Ottawa on the Columbia, and that Mr. Fulton "knew all about it."

Laboratory Tests Finished

On Scale Model Freighter

Construction of a new coastal freight and passenger ship for B.C. waters came a step closer today with the announcement that laboratory tests of a scale model have been completed.

Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd. and Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd., North Vancouver, parent company of Yarrows Ltd., have already tendered on the ship, to be operated by Northland Navigation Co.

$2,000 Award After Crash Christmas Day

Mrs. Laura Evelyn Ross of Port Alberni was awarded $2,000 general damages in B.C. Supreme Court today for injuries and losses sustained in a collision on the Island Highway near Lantzville, Nanaimo, on Christmas Day, 1959.

Her daughter, Linda Mae Ross, was awarded $500 damages and her son, Edward William, $250. Both were passengers in Mrs. Ross's car.

Mr. Justice James Hutchison found that a "tip-up" truck driven by Leslie Bagley of Nanaimo, an employee of the B.C. Highways Department, was responsible for the collision.

The truck was said to be obstructing the highway, with no lights showing at the rear, at about 8 p.m. on Christmas Day, 1959.

A car driven by Gerald R. Merrill, 835 Pemberton Road, Victoria, crashed into the back of the truck, bounced off and collided with Mrs. Ross's car.

Mrs. Ross sued Mr. Merrill and Mr. Merrill in turn sued Mr. Bagley.

Mr. Justice Hutchison absolved Mr. Merrill from any blame, ruling that Mr. Bagley was entirely to blame for the accident, since his truck was a "dangerous obstruction" on the highway.

Costs will be awarded later. Rodney Taylor appeared for Mr. Merrill; Lloyd McKenzie for Mr. Bagley and Armour Ford for Mrs. Ross and her children.

WILL COUNCIL WIN POWER SYSTEM?

'Cat and Mouse' Bus Game Moves Into Critical Phase

By JOHN MIKA, Times City Hall Reporter

A hidden chess game between City Hall and the provincial government over the transit system is beginning to emerge through the haze of the mayoralty campaign.

Here's how some observers, watching the civic scene, identify the players.

Making moves for the government are Dr. Hugh Keenleyside—who will be stuck with the buses as head of B.C. Hydro unless they are dumped—and mayoralty candidates J. Donald Smith, a Social Credit MLA, and Elmer McEwen, who has close connections with the provincial cabinet and is considered by some to be an occasionally accurate barometer of government thinking.

The city, with willing help from the outside municipalities, appears to be making its moves through intermunicipal committee.

The game is considered a test match for a similar situation in Vancouver where the provincial government's biggest transit problem lies since it took over B.C. Electric.

Main reason the government is believed to have for trying to get rid of the buses is the severe political headache involved in trying to please bus passengers who can vent their displeasure through the ballot box.

The city's main reason for not wanting the buses is economic—the $500,000 annual operating loss in Greater Victoria.

Government Gives Up a Few Pawns

So far, the provincial government has given up a few pawns to improve its position in pressuring the city—mainly through Dr. Keenleyside who has intimated government willingness to sell the B.C. Hydro Building to Victoria for a City Hall.

But that wasn't enough—in intermunicipal committee at Mayor Percy Scurrell's urging flatly rejected a suggestion that the buses should be taken over even for nothing by the city.

Next move was tipped by Mr. McEwen who said the government was willing to add a whopping discount on its $660,000 price for the Hydro Building if the city would only take the buses.

Sell System to Private Group?

Another diversion thrown into the campaign has been the strongest hint that the government is dealing with a private party for sale of the bus system. Once off its hands, the transit system could go bankrupt and fall on to the municipalities by default so far as the government is concerned.

But the municipalities have met this flanking move by reminding the government they hold a franchise veto on any sale of the bus system and indicating they will use the veto unless the government guarantees continued operation of the buses if it sells them to a private company.

With luck and determination, several people believe the municipalities can continue to checkmate the government until they get a package deal of the buses—and the lucrative

BCE power distribution system.

This is based on a belief that the government would not dare to leave Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver in the lurch by arbitrarily dropping the transit services with no one to pick them up.

This situation seems to be the background for two more veiled moves by the government, heralded by the mayoralty candidates Mr. Smith and Mr. McEwen, which involve substantial sacrifices in order to lift the 'municipalities' checkmate.

The first of these appears to be Mr. Smith's strong advocacy of provincial government action to force creation of a metropolitan government. This would please many officials throughout the area without antagonizing unduly those who want the four local councils to remain in existence.

Balance Profits Against Bus Loss

A metro government, superimposed on the present civic scene and probably made up of appointed representatives, could undertake the bus service on a businesslike basis—provided it had the money to offset the automatic transit losses.

The financial angle seems to have been supplied by Mr. McEwen—who was right about the cut-rate B.C. Hydro proposal—in a statement suggesting that he would be in favor of, taking over the buses if the city could buy the B.C. Electric's power distribution system.

By retailing electricity—supplied by the province as a wholesaler—a metro government could balance profits against the transit losses just as the privately-owned B.C. Electric did and as do many of Canada's cities which have municipal bus systems.

This suggestion was made earlier by Mayor Scurrell as the only acceptable formula under which the city would take over the buses.

At the time, the government refused. Mayor Scurrell dug in his heels and so far the government has not won the game—which has a Jan. 1 deadline of convenience because that's when B.C. Hydro assumes responsibility for the buses.

Some observers think that Mr. McEwen's statement indicates that the government is prepared to reverse its previous decision as a last resort.

It may be the only way it can win the game and even then it would not be a one-sided loss.

Because, no matter how financially attractive retailing power in the two largest urban centres of the province may be, the government also has to consider the disadvantage of mailing a bill every month to hundreds of thousands of voters.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Cape Breton returns 2 p.m. Nov. 30.

Skeena and Fraser return Dec. 15.

Grilse returns 4 p.m. Saturday.

Antigonish, New Glasgow return 12 noon Dec. 1.

Margaree returns 4.30 p.m. Sunday.

That's the possibility arising from "very, very good" tax collections to date reported today by city comptroller James Bramley.

Tax collections to the end of October showed 93.27 per cent of the current levy already in city coffers—almost 2 per cent more than at the same time last year.

That's a lot of money when 1 per cent represents $54,000 in the budget.

STILL COMING

And payments are still rolling in at a comparatively brisk pace during the last two-month period of the year although the final result can't be predicted.

"I'm very pleased with our tax collections... so far this year," Mr. Bramley said, "Victoria's economy had a real shot in the arm this past summer and it is reflected in the tax collections."

Pension Boost For Employees Of Liquor Board

A general increase in pension benefits for about 750 employees of the B.C. Liquor Control Board was approved today.

A cabinet order brought them under the Civil Service Superannuation Act.

Up to now the liquor board employees have been covered by a separate, private pension plan.

Employees already retired will receive increases to bring their pensions up to the civil service level.

Ex-Secretary To Governor Dies at 94

Funeral services will be held Monday for Captain Harry de Moleyns Mellin who died Thursday in a Victoria nursing home. He was 94.

A former secretary to B.C. Lieutenant-Governor Sir Frank Barnard, he was born in England, educated in Switzerland and came to Vancouver Island in 1895 where he farmed in the Soanens and Quamichan districts.

In 1911 he was appointed to the permanent staff of the provincial survey branch after serving as an inspector of construction for two years.

IN RIFLE BRIGADE

Capt. Mellin served in the Rifle Brigade during the First World War and rejoined the B.C. Civil Service at its close.

He retired from the Forest Service branch in 1932.

He was a life member of the Union Club and also belonged to the Canadian Club and the United Services Institute.

He is survived by a son, Andrew; a granddaughter and two great-grandchildren, all of Victoria.

The service will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. in Hayward's Chapel by Rev. T. D. B. Ragg. Interment will follow in the churchyard of St. Luke's.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Whole Family Would Like
... Hot Buttered Muffins

By PENNY SAVER

Here I am again, Sis: Muffin days were "the good old days," as I remember them. We used to tear home from school in hopes that mother would be taking a piping-hot batch of muffins out of the oven and would allow a little sampling.

Alas and alack! We can't indulge now, as we once did. We're too taken up with calorie counting.

But we can still sample, Sis, especially when it's the 100 per cent soya muffins. I've discovered, with no shortening, sugar or flour. Pretty low in calorie count, I'd say, wouldn't you? Yet, chock full of vitamins. You can buy them... or banana, fig, date, bran, rye or oat muffins, for 60 cents a dozen.

If you want to carry calorie counting even farther, and still get your vitamins try this new low calorie bread, made with ground sprouted wheat. There is very little starch and no shortening. Reasonable too, a 16-ounce loaf sells for 28 cents.

Because you've stuck so faithfully to your diet, I'll "tip you off" about some m-m-m-m delicious bread. Made from the same batter as the low calorie bread, but with sun flower seeds mixed generously through it. A 16-ounce loaf is 28 cents, too.

Baked your Christmas cake yet? Remember I'm expecting a generous sample. Anyhow, that's not really why I asked. I was sort of hoping you hadn't got down to it, because I've heard what sounds like a tremendous idea for adding something extra to a cake. Knowing your tastes I'm sure you'll like it. Honeyed apricots, pears or figs can be cut into small pieces and used as well as glazed fruits and raisins in your mix. One-pound bags of this honeyed fruit sell for 85 cents each.

I'm really looking forward to seeing the whole family soon and especially you, Sis, with your new streamlined figure.

Call me soon and I'll tell you where I shopped today.

In her annual report, Mrs. Leslie Aylard, retiring president, spoke of the invaluable service done by the visiting committee, who paid 986 visits to "shut-ins" in hospitals, nursing homes and rooms. Through the recommendations of these visitors the needs of the arthritic sufferers could be made known and wheel chairs, clinic treatment, crutches, self-aids and other necessary equipment had been provided.

As a means of occupational therapy 18 patients had attended arts and crafts classes, learning weaving, pottery making and various ceramic skills. A total of 1061 hours had been given voluntarily by nine members of the auxiliary at the clinic in St. Joseph's Hospital, where a physiotherapist, Mrs. M. Peterson, was in charge of treatments.

Danish Fruit Melange

The gay holiday season... there's a lilt in the spirits, a sparkle in the air... and some of the most fabulous foods of the year on our tables, dishes we eat for sheer delight. High in the pleasing and delightful department could be this Danish Fruited Melange.

For one thing, it looks rich and luscious and extravagant. For another, while it looks rich, it tastes light. The melange is a great deep froth of whipped cream crowded with fruits—wine-y, sweet-tart prunes lavishly present in big prune-half pieces; juicy chunks of pineapple; mandarin orange segments, banana slices, together with chewy bits of meringue and crunchy toasted almonds.

This is a dessert you can serve to anyone. You can pile it by the spoonful into individual dessert dishes. Or offer it, high and elegant, in your prettiest dessert bowl. Keep it for special occasions, if you wish. On the other hand, it's so good, so wholesome and so easy to make, you'll probably want to treat the family to it often.

DANISH FRUITED
MELANGE

One cup heavy cream, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup plumped pitted prunes (halved), 1 cup diced canned pineapple, 1 cup mandarin oranges, 1 cup sliced bananas, 2 cups broken meringue pieces, 6 whole plumped pitted prunes, ¼ cup silvered toasted almonds.

Whip cream until stiff gradually adding sugar. Fold in prunes, pineapple, mandarin oranges, bananas and meringue pieces. Spoon into serving dishes. Top with prunes and nuts. Makes six servings.

Meringue—Two egg whites, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vinegar.

Beat egg whites until stiff; gradually beat in one-third cup of the sugar. Add remaining sugar alternately with vinegar, beating constantly. Beat until very stiff and glossy. Drop by teaspoons in small mounds on brown paper on baking sheet. Bake at 275 degrees, 40-50 minutes or until delicately browned. Cool and crumble enough to make 2 cups of broken pieces.

Note: The remaining meringues can be served with fruit, ice cream or other cream dessert.

L'Alliance Francaise de Victoria, Monday at 3 p.m., Greater Victoria Art Gallery, Moss Street. Tea and conversation in French. Mrs. C. T. W. Hyslop will speak on history of French pioneers in Victoria.

DEAR ABBY...

Forget Him, Honey!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I was practically engaged to a college boy of 19. I am 16. Everything was going along great until I found out he had been seeing two other girls. I asked him to explain himself but he didn't seem to want to, so I told him we were through.

I thought sure he'd call me up and apologize, but he hasn't called me yet, and it's been over two months. Should I write him a letter and ask him to call me? I think he really wants me back but has too much pride to call.

DEAR ABBY: I doubt if he has too much pride. He's probably having too much fun. Don't write him. Write him off.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I dine out with friends, he will frequently say, "Aren't you going to eat your potato?" Or, "If you don't want to finish your dessert, I'll take it." He is always finishing up someone's salad or steak, and behaving like a human garbage pail in general. He is an executive with a good family background, so don't tell me he doesn't know better. I don't mind his cleaning up my plate at home, but when we are out in public it becomes embarrassing. How can I stop him?

DEAR ABBY: Our hearts are breaking with grief. Our beautiful 16-year-old daughter ran away and got married. When they came to tell us we said things in our hurt and anger that we meant at the time, but regret now. They had promised they would wait until she graduated from high school. We had so much faith in them that we kept our home open to this man. We liked him so much. He is over 21. Now we don't even know where our daughter is. She has quit school. They won't even let us apologize. The boy called and told us to stop trying to get in touch with them because they never want to see us again. We just want to know that our daughter is well and happy. Sixteen is so young. What can we do? HEART-BROKEN PARENTS: DEAR PARENTS: Wait. Your daughter will call you.

Everybody's got a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of this paper.

Emmanuel Baptist Church Setting For Kendal-Janke Wedding Vows

White chrysanthemums decorated Emmanuel Baptist Church recently when Rev. A. Hamill officiated at the marriage of Carol Gene Janke and Stephen Walter Kendall.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Janke, 2035 Stanley Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kendall, 715 Catherine Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown in silk brocade that featured a basque bodice with scoop neckline and lily point sleeves. Full swirling skirt was held at the waist with a satin cummerbund that had a bridal rose as back interest. Chapel-length veil misted from a crystal tiara.

Identical emerald green gowns of shot silk were chosen by maid of honor, Miss Vivien Dopson, and bridesmaid, Miss Diana Perry. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Petite flower girl Lesley Jacobson wore gown and headband of pink nylon and carried a posy of pink roses and white carnations. Arthur Baird was best man and ushering guests to their pews were the groom's brothers, Richard and Kenneth Kendall. Roland Walsh sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

Red roses topped the wedding cake that centred the head table at a reception in Loughheed's Banquet Hall. Cake was made by the groom's father, Larry Gudmundson proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and the United States, the new Mrs. Kendall donned a turquoise wool suit and matching hat, black accessories and white gardenia corsage.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When Baby's on the Way, Correct Bra Fit is Important

Q. "I'm wondering if there are exercises a woman can take while she is pregnant and afterwards to preserve her bustline. I do not intend to nurse my baby."

A. Perhaps most important of all is the correct fit in a brassiere which is especially designed to support the increased weight of the bust.

Exercises which develop the chest muscles reinforce the bustline. You can take these. Some doctors allow some patients to swim during the earlier months. Your doctor should say what type of exercise you can safely take.

Be sure about the bras you wear. That is the important thing! Lubrication may also help by keeping the skin of the bust pliable. Apply a good body lotion gently at night.

Q. "I am 13 and have a perfect 34-24-34 figure. I don't want to sound conceited, but my bust is a perfect 34, my waist a perfect 24 and my hips a perfect 34, and I am not overweight. The trouble is I have a 26-inch tire around my middle. I can hold it in when I stand, but when I sit down it pops out. I have to keep my arms folded all the time, and this doesn't help much. Will exercise reduce this?"

A. Yes, you can make wonderful improvement with exercise. Stand tall, feet separated, arms overhead. Bend forward, trying to touch the fingertips to your left toe, or as near as possible. Raise the trunk and arms, pulling back to the right. Continue bending and raising trunk. After a few times bend forward trying to touch fingertips to right toe. Raise trunk and arms and pull back to the left. Don't keep your arms folded. You will look like you have a tummy ache. I will write more about this figure fault tomorrow.

Q. "Please answer me in your column. As you will see, I have a very small bust. I am 13 years old. My measurements are bust 28 inches, waist 25 and hips 33. I am going to the ninth grade and, as you know, with a small measurement, I am teased very much and feel like an undersized runt, which I am. Please give some of your best bust exercises so that I can acquire a bust like my girl friends at school have."

A. Don't let the teasing bother you because you will have the last laugh. Girls vary in the age at which the bust develops. However, this is a good exercise. Stand tall. Bend your elbows and place the palms of your hands together. Press the hands together hard, one palm pressing against the other. Hold for a few moments. Relax and continue. The palms should be just a little below shoulder height.

If any of my readers would like to have my new booklet, "Your Bust," which gives you information about care of the bust during pregnancy, brassieres, stretch marks, exercises for increasing the bust measurements, and lots of other information you will find valuable, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Banned Driver Jailed 20 Days In Saanich Court

STORY OF THE KETCH BLUEBELLE

A Snub-Nosed Girl—A Tortured Mind

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—On Sunday, Nov. 12, the graceful ketch Bluebelle sailed on a freshening wind through the Northwest Providence Channel of the Bahamas, her bows slicing through six-foot swells on a course for Florida.

On board was a happy vacation party, the Arthur Duperrault family of Green Bay, Wis., taking the tropic ocean cruise of which they had long dreamed.

They had sailed in a leisurely way, stopping as they pleased to skimp in clear emerald waters and comb deserted white beaches. Now it was almost over and they hated to go home. Terry Jo Duperrault, 11, had written a friend in Green Bay, declaring:

"I don't think we'll ever come back from Florida."

Remained on Deck

At 9 p.m., Terry Jo and her sister, Renee, seven, went to bed in the after cabin below. Mr. and Mrs. Duperrault and their son Brian, 14, remained on deck in the balmy darkness, visiting with Capt. Julian Harvey and his charming wife, Mary.

Then, some time that black, moonless night, a terrifying disaster swept the deck of the Bluebelle.

Next day, the tanker Gulf Lyon picked up the ketch's lifeboat. In it were Harvey and the body of Renee. An intensive air-sea search turned up no other survivors and found no trace of the Bluebelle.

In Miami, Harvey told coast guard interrogators the main mast snapped in a 20-knot wind and pierced the deck and hull. Then fire broke out amidships, he said, and the others jumped overboard. By the time he had floated the lifeboat, he could find no one but the dead Renee in the tossing sea.

Story Interrupted

The captain's testimony was interrupted by a telephone call. Something else had floated free from the sinking Bluebelle. On a tiny cork raft, when it was found by the freighter Captain Theo, was a taffy-haired, half-conscious little girl.

Without food or water, Terry Jo had ridden a tiny raft across heaving seas, through 3½ days of burning tropic sunshine and dark, fearful nights, and somehow survived.

Desperate Shape

The little girl was in desperate condition. It would be some time before she could tell her story. But Harvey did not wait to hear it. He slashed his veins and bled to death on the floor of a Miami motel room.

Two days later, Terry Jo blurted out her story. She had awakened to screams, found the bodies of her mother and Brian lying in blood in the central cabin, and saw more blood on the top deck.

An angry, wild-eyed Harvey struck her, she said, then took the lifeboat and the Bluebelle's rubber raft and abandoned her on the deck of the sinking ketch. She found the cork raft and floated it just as the Bluebelle went down.

Now there were two stories of the tragedy of the Bluebelle. Had there been a moon-belle?

RCN OFFICER JAILED TWO YEARS FOR THEFT

HALIFAX (CP)—Navy Lieutenant Duncan A. Shelley was sentenced today to two years in penitentiary for theft and told the court that sooner or later "they are going to find out."

"And by that time—I don't care who knows it—the next time anybody here sees me they are going to see a corpse." He did not elaborate on what was to be found out, Shelley many times has claimed he is innocent.

Shelley, former supply officer on the destroyer Iroquois, was convicted Oct. 14 but was later remanded for a mental examination after a psychiatrist testified he was mentally ill.

Psychiatrist Eva Rodo testified today that Shelley was not mentally ill. He did have a personality disorder and had expressed an intention of committing suicide, she said.

Wiser's whiskies are older in virtually all cases!

Older to Wiser's means aged in wood, not merely the date stamp on the bottle. It means "married in wood" which is a process of returning the spirits to wood after final blending—for a further period of quiet aging. It means "lighter," smoother flavour acquired naturally—through patient aging. For the best whiskies, drink one that's older and Wiser's

EXAMPLE: Wiser's De Luxe—a light mellow Canadian whisky—10 years old.

Wiser's well-aged whiskies: Wiser's De Luxe, 10 years old, Wiser's 101, 6 years old, Wiser's Old Rye, 5 years old, Wiser's Special Blend, 4 years old.

Pre-School Checks Needed

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—More medical attention should be focused on children between the ages of two and six so that disabilities are discovered before they enter school, Dr. J. K. Martin, professor of paediatrics at the University of Alberta, said today.

He told delegates to the second annual Ontario conference on handicapped children that lack of medical examinations during this period impairs future treatment of handicapped children. The conference is sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association's child welfare committee and the Atkinson Charitable Foundation.

Many disabilities are not discovered at the time of birth and there is a gap from the time a child completes his primary inoculations until he enters school, Dr. Martin said.

Dr. Martin said public health units could also be of more assistance because parents cannot always be relied upon to bring their children for examination.

"Too often it is the neglected child whose need is the greatest."

27 Drown in India

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Twenty-seven people, most of them women and children, were drowned Wednesday when a boat taking them to a fair capsized and sank in the Narmada River, near Surat in Gujarat state, police said Thursday. Another 109 people in the boat managed to swim to shore or were rescued by police.

PLAYPOOL SOLVES PROBLEM—A group of children splashing in an inflatable pool lit the idea lamp for an employee in a factory in Auburn, Wash., where jet engine nacelles are made. Placed in the jet's inlet, the pool protects the engine from dust and possible damage during shipment and is half the cost of the previous type of insert. The company is now ordering quantities of the playpool—but minus the ducks and rabbit. Above, employees at Renton Field, Wash., examine an engine shipped to them with the playful playpool cover and evidently approve the idea.

'Teaching Machines' May Raise Standards

OTTAWA (CP)—Teaching machines may not prove to be of great help in teaching students but they are likely to improve the standard of teachers, Dr. F. G. Robinson, research director for the Canadian Teachers' Federation, said Thursday.

Dr. Robinson told a federation seminar on programmed learning that many of the claims being made for the new system are based on insufficient evidence.

Although teaching machines and the programmed studies they dispense had proven useful in limited tests, it would be necessary to try them out over longer periods to reach any definite conclusion.

The programmed studies, which can be used in machines or in text form, are a means of self-instruction prepared in such a manner that a logical progression of facts can be assimilated in steps without the aid of a teacher.

He said claims of superiority by the advocates of programmed learning could equally be found in good teachers anywhere.

MOSCOW LAUDS FORRESTER

LENINGRAD, Russia (CP) Contralto, Maureen Forrester of Montreal gave her first recital in Leningrad Thursday night and critics praised her voice.

They noted that the Canadian's contralto was of a most beautiful timbre and that her singing was distinguished by depth of interpretation and a soft lyric quality.

She appeared in a program of Bach, Franz Schumann, Barer, de Falla and Mahler.

Gas Cans Hold Key to Search

MERAUKE, Dutch New Guinea (Reuters)—Two empty gasoline cans today held the key to the fate of Michael Rockefeller, 23, missing son of New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

Air searchers today concentrated on spotting the cans, which Rockefeller used for buoyancy in his attempt to reach shore.

Experts have calculated that if Rockefeller reached shore safely at the mouth of the Eilanden River and left the cans in the water, they should now have washed up on the waist-deep mud beaches of Frederik Hendrik Island, 80 miles to the south.

Rockefeller said at a press conference here Thursday that if the cans are not found he would have to assume "that Michael did not reach shore and is dead".

ADOULA OPPOSES PLAN TO DISARM CONGOLESE

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula declared his opposition today to any disarming of Congolese troops, forcing the United Nations to re-examine its plan to punish the Katanga mutineers who slaughtered 13 UN airmen from Italy.

UN headquarters here immediately opened a radio link with Acting Secretary-General U Thant in New York on receipt of a letter from the Congolese premier this morning.

RUSS SET SPY TRIALS FOR GERMAN TOURISTS

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Foreign Ministry announced today the trial of two West German tourists on charges of espionage for U.S. intelligence will be held in Kiev on Nov. 28.

The defendants are Adolf Werner, 51, and his wife, Hermine, 45.

According to the Soviet announcement, the Werners carried incriminating films of Soviet military objectives and notebooks with secret writing and other espionage material.

BENNETT WANTS ACTION

Fleming Asked To Talk Power

Premier Bennett said Thursday he is writing to federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming inviting a speedy meeting either in Victoria or Ottawa on the Columbia River project.

Mr. Bennett said in Kelowna that he is leaving it up to Mr. Fleming to decide if Prime Minister Diefenbaker should also attend.

In Ottawa an aide to Mr. Fleming said the finance minister would be glad to discuss the Columbia with the premier, but would wait for his letter before deciding details of the meeting.

DIEF INVITED

At the same time a move was launched by Vancouver Conservatives to invite the prime minister to speak there about the Columbia.

These moves came against a background of dissent and confusion over the role of the U.S. in B.C.-Ottawa negotiations on the Columbia project.

This started last week when Premier Bennett met President Kennedy in Seattle, and now concerns statements attributed to U.S. Secretary of the Interior Charles Udall about the possibility of B.C. selling Columbia benefit power to the Americans.

'SOCIAL' MEETING

Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton Thursday called in U.S. ambassador Livingston Merchant in Ottawa to explain the situation.

Mr. Fulton said he had been assured by Mr. Merchant that the Kennedy-Bennett meeting was only "social" and not concerned with specific Columbia details.

He said he was awaiting a fuller report on Mr. Udall's remarks.

Mr. Fulton said press reports said "Mr. Udall commented recently that he has no doubt that the sale to the U.S. of Canada's entitlement to Columbia River power would be approved by Ottawa."

He also said Mr. Udall had been quoted that "Canada's concern about difficulties over the recapture of power sold to the U.S. under long-term contracts was stuff and nonsense."

Mr. Fulton continued: "With respect to the specific remarks attributed to Secretary of the Interior Charles Udall."

West Germany Being Aided

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today lashed out at NATO members Denmark and Norway and said Russia would take "all necessary measures" now to curb the influence of warlike West Germans.

Khrushchev accused Denmark and Norway of scuttling Scandinavian security by helping West Germany threaten Russia through Finland.

The premier was speaking at Novosibirsk, Siberia, 2,000 miles from Moscow after winding up talks with Finnish President Urho Kekkonen.

The talks were on Soviet charges that West Germany and its NATO partners threatened Russia through Finland, and Khrushchev said the Soviet Union's duty was to take "all necessary measures" now before it is too late to curb West German militarists and revanchists.

"By giving in to the pressure and demands of NATO and especially of West Germany military circles and by actively entering into new military preparations, Denmark and Norway, we are deeply convinced, are undermining their own security and aggravating the situation in northern Europe and in the Baltic," he said.

Khrushchev said both Finland and Russia are threatened by "West German militarists and revenge seekers."

A recent Soviet note to Finland had failed to change the outlook of Danish and Norwegian leaders, he said.

MILITARY COMMAND

Khrushchev recalled that West German Defence Minister Franz-Josef Strauss had recently accepted an invitation from the Norwegian government to visit Norway, and noted that Danish-West German talks were under way toward creation of a joint military command between the two countries.

"One does not want to believe it but all this looks very much like some kind of military demonstration," Khrushchev said.

He said Russia had "most regretfully" noted that Scandinavia was no longer an area of peace and calm, which it was until recently.

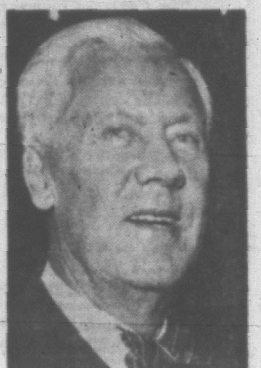

"Finland's neutrality is one of the important guarantees of the preservation of peace and tranquility in the European north and Baltic area," Khrushchev said.

He said activities of right-wing Finnish groups aimed at torpedoing Soviet-Finnish friendship are a source of worry to Russia.

The official news agency Tass said the Khrushchev-Kekkonen talks were conducted "in a spirit of frankness and mutual confidence."

In Helsinki, the foreign ministry announced that the

Curfew Lifted

(See story page 12.)

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI)—Tanks and troop carriers were withdrawn from downtown Santo Domingo today ending a one-day curfew decreed to halt violence and looting.

Normal conditions reigned in the centre of the city where heavily armed troops Thursday were forced to fire tear gas grenades and shoot over the heads of tumultuous crowds.

European Space Plan

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain hopes to get signed by the end of January a convention providing for a joint European space satellite, a diplomatic source said today.

JFK Meets Top Aides

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—President Kennedy met with a number of top-ranking advisers today on military spending, civil defence and foreign trade. The chief executive broke into his Thanksgiving holiday for a series of talks on those three key issues with Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and other officials who flew to Cape Cod from Washington.

DRIVERLESS TRUCK RUNS WILD

Slippery, steep hill and 1,000-pound rock proved too much for Evans, Coleman and Evans dump truck today at 11.10 a.m. Truck slid, slipped its brakes and went 50 feet before crashing into 30-foot tree outside 1330 Bond. Both wheels snapped off, one rolling 180 feet into steps of 1319 Bond, shifting them off centre. Driver's door was torn off and rock fell off crumbling pavement. Driver was not in the truck at the time and there were no injuries. Vehicle was loading rock cleared from property at head of Bond Street. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

AT KINGSTON

Prison Guard Knifed to Death

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A Kingston Penitentiary guard was hacked to death early today in a washroom at the maximum security institution.

William Clement Wentworth, 42, was found at 2 a.m. by Paul Deschamps, senior guard in charge of the prison at the time. Wentworth was bleeding from 11 wounds.

Two bloodstained knives were found in a garbage pail in the 42-prisoner dormitory where the slaying occurred. Prison officers said it appeared the guard had been attempting to defend himself.

All 42 prisoners have access to the washroom where Wentworth was found.

The guard was married, the father of two children, and had worked at the prison for nine years.

A three-pronged investigation by prison officials, city police and RCMP has begun.

Prison officials said the 42 men in the area were kept together because they were thought to be "compatible."

Naval Aid Declined

(See page 30.)

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller has turned down with thanks an American offer of aid by the U.S. 7th Fleet in the New Guinea search for the governor's missing son Michael, it was reported today.

The last time a guard was killed in the prison was about 10 years ago, officials said.

The slain man was reported to have been prominent in boy scout and church work.

Dormitory C, where the slaying occurred, is an open room. There are no partitions.

The washroom is at the far end from the locked and barred door.

The beds, hospital type, are in four rows with walking space between and a wider space beyond every 10th bed.

The lone guard sits at a desk near the door, locked in with the prisoners. He is not armed. From where he sits, the guard can see the whole room.

At intervals, the patrol guard in the yard outside shines a flashlight or by waving from the window.

Prison officials said there would be little reason for the senior guard to come to the dormitory other than to investigate the lack of an answering signal.

There was no word on where the two knives found came from, but it was believed they were made in the blacksmith shop or the machine shop.

PACIFIC STORM TO BRING SNOW

Most of Vancouver Island, and especially higher levels, can expect snow by Saturday morning, according to weatherman William Mackie.

"We're hoping Victoria will escape, but the Malahat almost certainly will have snow," he said.

The villain is a fast-stepping storm in the Pacific which will give cloud here by early Saturday, and rain before noon. Snowfalls will be of short duration, then will turn to rain.

Temperatures here overnight will range between 28 and 33 degrees, and maximum expected for Saturday is 45 degrees. Winds Saturday will be southeasterly at 20 miles an hour.

Unsettled weather picture is expected to continue through Sunday, Mr. Mackie said.

(See Page 12)

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has no knowledge of a reported "leak" to the United States of a copy of a secret speech made to the European Common Market last month by Edward Heath, Britain's lord privy seal, a finance department spokesman said today.

He said the department has heard of reports in London that the U.S. government had obtained a copy of the Heath statement on Oct. 10 setting out Britain's position in negotiations on its bid to join the Common Market.

"But we know nothing about it," the Canadian government has been asking the British for a copy of the Heath statement. Finance Minister Fleming, in London talks Monday with Prime Minister Macmillan, repeated the request. He didn't get it.

Mr. Fulton said press reports said "Mr. Udall commented recently that he has no doubt that the sale to the U.S. of Canada's entitlement to Columbia River power would be approved by Ottawa."

BERLIN TALKS SET DEC. 11

BONN (Reuters)—The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany will meet in Paris Dec. 11 to discuss Berlin and Germany, West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder said today, according to Christian Democratic party sources.

CHILDREN OF INDIA

$7 a Month Sponsors Needy Child in Home

The most personal project undertaken by the Unitarian Service Committee is its Foster Parent Scheme under which it now supports 30 children's institutions in Korea, Hong Kong, Italy, France and India.

The scheme is just one of the many facets of USC work in foreign lands which is supported by donations to the Times Children of India Fund.

For only $7 a month an individual, church group, men's or women's organization or group of friends can sponsor a child in one of the 30 homes.

Letters, pictures and little home-made gifts from the children convey a desperate feeling of being wanted but, as one foster parent put it: "Your scheme is a two-way street and I believe I am getting much more out of it than my child."

The $7 provides food, clothing, medical care and education. Older children are given vocational training to allow the young to stand on their own feet when they grow up.

USC executive director, Dr. Lotta Hittschmanova, tells of a Korean boy whose foster father in Vancouver died.

"All the child could do," she said, "was to send the seeds of his national flower to be planted on the father's grave so he could be near him always."

Looming over this personal care for a relatively few children is the spectre of starving and diseased children dying in their thousands.

The executive director especially appealed to Victorians who thought a few cents of a dollar was too small to give but could not spare any more. "Your dollar may not buy very much here," she said, "but if only you could see how big it grows when we use it to buy life in India."

Donations may be sent or brought to the Times at 2631 Douglas and gifts of adult and children's clothing to 1117 Wharf.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

(From Times News Services)

NEW YORK—A 21-year-old sheetmetal worker devoured a rich, green feast for Thanksgiving—$83 in ten, five and one dollar bills.

Gerard Murray, arrested on an assault charge after battling with a patrolman, refused to turn over his money for safekeeping at the precinct house and ate the bills one by one, according to police.

Murray washed down his cash with a glass of water, obligingly furnished by police. He gave no reason for his action.

LEEDS, Eng.—Three hundred workers at a bus factory went on strike today because the management halted their practice of sending out for fish and chips during business hours.

POOLE, Eng.—"Stop!" demanded the young man in the uniform of a White Russian officer. "It's the late czar's birthday."

"A toast," demanded the czar's man. "Long live the czar."

Walters rushed in with the national fire water of old and new mother Russia.

"I am Count Mikhail Ivanovich Suslov-Karinsky," said the first officer, clicking his heels smartly and bowing at the waist.

At the end of a wonderful evening, the czar's men left by automobile.

About 300 yards away they crashed into a lamp post.

"Cossacks!" shouted Count Mikhail Ivanovich Suslov-Karinsky from the wreckage. "We are being pursued by Cossacks! We need help!"

The Cossacks turned out to be the Dorset police.

In court Thursday the constables told the story of the czar's men.

One was 30-year-old Bryan Scott who pleaded guilty to drunken driving. The former Royal Navy member said he and his companion, Michael Spufford, had wagered to see who could drink the most vodka. No charges were laid against Spufford.

The late Czar Nicholas II's birthday, incidentally, was May 18.

VANCOUVER—Toy floor managers in Vancouver stores said Thursday the ban-the-bomb movement has affected the Christmas toy market.

One floor manager said: "People seem to be reacting against the nuclear age. They are going out of their way to buy toys which have no connection with war."

LONDON—Retiring blacksmith William Rice's appeal to the Queen Mother to help him find a home for his three old horses has succeeded.

The horses are all over 20 years old.

The blacksmith—who at 74 is one of London's last smiths—wrote an appeal to the mother of Queen Elizabeth.

The Queen Mother appealed to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

As a result, John, Ada and Jim will be moved Sunday from a stable behind Rice's blacksmith shop to a farm in nearby County Surrey.

WINNIPEG—The Winnipeg School Board Thursday rejected a proposal to take straps away from teachers.

A motion by trustee Mary Kardash to limit the right to administer corporal punishment to principals only was defeated by a 9-5 vote.

City Council Delays On Promotion Fight

An arbitration award involving promotion procedures in the city fire department handed down last month was tabled Thursday by the city council at the request of the fire wardens committee.

The award nullified a city promotion of a junior lieutenant, over the heads of several senior lieutenants, into a vacant captaincy. It said he could only be considered as holding the position in an acting capacity.

The council was told that fire wardens chairman Ald. A. I. Curtis and city manager C. C. Wyatt, who had refused to disclose contents of the award publicly, wanted to negotiate

"other matters" before dealing with the award.

Firemen's union president Eric Simmons complained to the council that implementation of the binding award was "long overdue" since it had been made October 4.

He expressed fears that further delay might be used to circumvent the award.

"I request that appropriate action be taken immediately to carry out the terms of the award, in the spirit of bargaining in good faith and the continuation of good relations between the representatives of the city and the fire fighters."

Khrushchev-Kekkonen talks took place in a "spirit of frankness, mutual and understanding and sincere confidence."

Kekkonen arranged to return to Moscow and to catch a train that is expected to get him to Helsinki Sunday.

(Khrushchev's speech, and earlier his note to the Finnish government requesting joint defence talks, seem to have been sparked by the recent action of NATO in setting up a Baltic command whose members are West Germany, Norway and Denmark.)

LOVE FOR PEACE

Khrushchev Friday said love for peace dictated Russia's demand for the conclusion of a German peace treaty and for the "normalization" of the situation in West Berlin.

He said former Nazis, who now were ruling the West German bundeswehr army and were infiltrating the leading quarters of NATO, must not be given arms.

Knowing their tendency toward warlike ventures, their word could not be trusted and one could not believe even their most solemn promises, he said.

Wilson Promises To Work For Tourism

Mayorality candidate R. B. (Dick) Wilson today pledged he would strive to expand the city's tourist and convention business as the best long-term economic prospect for the city.

He said new income sources and job opportunities should be sought constantly.

"If elected mayor, I would work towards the expansion of the tourist and convention business which gives the promise of being our largest dollar earner," he said.

He said a great deal of good groundwork has been done in developing the tourist interest but there still remain great opportunities for increasing the city's share of the tourist dollar.

"Our facilities for catering to tourism are better now than ever before, but we should be forever searching for additional ways of attracting more people and making their visit more enjoyable and their stay longer," he said.

QUEEN, PHILIP SAIL FOR SIERRA LEONE

MONROVIA (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip left here in the royal yacht Britannia early today for Freetown, capital of Sierra Leone, after a one-day visit to Liberia as part of a West African tour.

Before they left, the royal couple gave a dinner on board the yacht for President William Tubman and his wife. Leading Liberians and Commonwealth ambassadors also attended.

This was followed later by a reception during which the Queen's guests watched a fireworks display over the harbor.

The Queen and the Prince will arrive in Freetown Saturday.

Sierra Leone became an independent state within the Commonwealth last April after 133 years of British rule.

Tough Curbs on Gambling Urged in Ontario Report

TORONTO (CP)—A report on gambling prepared for the Ontario government recommends legal betting off the race tracks as well as other reforms of gambling laws.

It also favors tough measures to curb illegal gambling, including withdrawal of telephone service from known bookmakers.

The report, prepared by Professor J. Desmond Morton of Osgoode Hall law school and economic statistician Rolf Eng, was made public Thursday.

It contains a warning that illegal gambling poses a "real and immediate danger" to Canadian society.

"The committee is satisfied that there is a grave danger, if the present illegal gambling operation is permitted to continue, that either domestic or foreign criminal elements will prosper to such an extent as to undermine the very nature of our society," the report said.

RECOMMENDS BOARD

Off-track betting outlets should be established under government controls and a provincial gambling control board should be set up on the lines of the present Liquor Control Board of Ontario, the committee says.

The report was tabled in the legislature Thursday by Attorney General K. J. Roberts, who ordered it last July.

Liberal opposition leader John Wintermeyer said the report "demonstrates the tie-in between New York and Ontario" in organized crime.

The report found present gambling laws "extremely difficult to enforce. It cites lack of public support for the law as 'probably the greatest problem in enforcement.'"

QUEEN'S DANCE WITH NKRUMAH CRITICIZED

Boers Shocked by 'High Life' Hop

PORT ELIZABETH (Reuters)—The local South African nationalist newspaper Die Oosterlig says it was "scandalous" that Queen Elizabeth danced with President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana during her visit to the West African nation.

"An Afrikaans-speaking person with his deep-rooted color feeling must not be blamed if he is disgusted at the spectacle of the British Queen on the dance floor with a black dictator of Africa," it said.

GLAD LINK GONE

"It is just as well that we in South Africa are no longer linked with a Commonwealth where such things are becoming the fashion to an increasing extent," it added.

Die Oosterlig notes that according to reports: "They enjoyed it at the same time. The prince consort, Prince Philip, waved with a happy laugh and danced the same dance with Mrs. Nkrumah."

"ABOMINABLE"

"This spectacle of the honored head of the once-mighty British Empire dancing with black natives of Pagan-Africa is extremely scandalous and abominable for more than just Afrikaners."

"Trumpeting forth that the Queen apparently enjoys it is just as bad."

Who Pays Mr. Wenner-Gren?

ACCORDING TO THE VANCOUVER Province, Mr. Axel Wenner-Gren and his fellow promoters have taken a collective profit of $2.9 millions out of their Peace River scheme. Let the public understand at once who is the real source of this money—no one but the British Columbia taxpayers. They are subsidizing the promoters.

The public should also understand that the government expropriated the Peace River promotion because it had concluded that Mr. Wenner-Gren's great plans for electrical power, a railway and various industries could not go ahead.

They were obstructed because the then privately-owned B.C. Electric would not commit itself in advance to massive purchases of Peace River power.

Premier Bennett continually pressed the late Mr. Dal Grauer to buy this power but he refused, even when threatened with the expropriation of the B.C. Electric. In the judgment of Mr. Grauer, probably Canada's ablest public utility executive, Peace River power would be too expensive, would penalize the consumer and damage the B.C. Electric.

When Mr. Bennett could not compel Mr. Grauer to commit his company completely to the Peace River scheme, the government expropriated the B.C. Electric, along with the Wenner-Gren promotion.

The established public utility and the dubious promotion were both taken over by the government without any impartial judgment of their value to protect the shareholders as vendors or the taxpayers as buyers.

The price of B.C. Electric shares was fixed by their quotation on the stock exchange at a certain day, though such fluctuating quotations cannot indicate the true value of any stock.

The amount to be paid to the Wenner-Gren promoters was to be fixed by the provincial comptroller general, an excellent official but a servant of the government. Though his integrity is not to be doubted, it was quite unfair to him and to the public that he should be compelled to undertake this responsibility.

His instructions were that the promoters should be paid exactly the amount that they had spent on their northern investigations. The amount thus fixed was $8 millions but, oddly enough, the government did not immediately announce the figure. It was finally dug out of the records by a Times reporter.

Up to now the government has not stated how that figure was calculated. Where, when and how did the promoters spend all that money? What proof did they give of actual expenditure? Where are their vouchers, receipts and other documents of proof?

None of these facts has been given to the public but the government is bound to give them to the Legislature as soon as it meets. If the Legislature does not insist on getting them it will have lost the power of the purse and abdicated its first duty.

Meanwhile, according to the Province, the promoters have made a huge over-all profit without producing a kilowatt of power, without establishing a single industry and without even building the railway which Mr. Bennett always regarded as the primary objective of their scheme.

Why should there be any profit at all? How could there be if the government's formula was strictly enforced and the promoters were paid only the amount they had actually spent?

As the Province reports, some of the shareholders in the promotion have lost money while others have gained a still larger amount. Apparently the government regards these gains and losses—a net gain for the whole deal—as solely the business of the shareholders.

The total amount paid to them collectively, however, is the business of the taxpayers who supply all the money. The taxpayers have a right to know why there should be any profit on a scheme which never succeeded; why Mr. Wenner-Gren emerges richer by a very large sum of taxpayers' money from his adventure in British Columbia.

Behind the Cheering

THE QUEEN'S VISIT TO Ghana has been hailed as a great success from the point of view of encouraging a fine show of appreciation and loyalty from the people as a whole. In making this arduous trip and carrying out her royal duties with the usual faultless perfection, the Queen has earned the admiration of all.

But despite her accomplishment, the sombre background of Ghana remains—the barely curbed unrest, the lurking violence, the shaky democratic structure—and the sinister, dictatorial activities of President Nkrumah.

Nkrumah, with a controlling hand on the legislature, has acted to safeguard his regime in a legal way. It is legal in the same manner that the enabling legislation of Hitler and Mussolini was legal.

To silence political criticism, Nkrumah had the Preventive Detention Act passed. This enables him to put political opponents in jail for five years without trial. Some 250 political prisoners are believed to be in Ghana's jails under this act.

He has put through a law which establishes a high court to try treason, sedition and other offences against the peace such as rioting and unlawful assembly. This legal net is wide enough to catch anybody Nkrumah doesn't want around. The special high court can sentence to prison or to death; there is no jury, no right of appeal, and a simple majority of the bench can convict.

The field is wide open for the President. With such a law behind him, there will be little criticism or opposition to his operations.

Here is a ghastly parody of democracy, a governmental farce by political children. It is jungle law brought into the halls of the capital, and it cannot be hidden by the crowds of thousands of common people who came in sincerity and affection to cheer their Queen.

Nicely Done, Jaycees

ONCE AGAIN THE JUNIOR Chamber of Commerce has shown a community spirit—backed by good judgment and active follow-through—that sets an example for all of us.

With excellent understanding and foresight the members of the organization have voted to establish a laboratory for radio-isotope chemistry at Victoria College, the funds to come from their exhibition proceeds this year plus matching government grants.

The new acquisition will greatly enhance the science department at the College, and provide important services and equipment for the use of local hospitals and police. The contribution is valuable not only for itself, but as an indication of popular support for the rapidly growing College, and a hint of the further advances that may be expected as time goes on.

Meanwhile the community and the Gordon Head institution are indebted to the Jaycees, who have added to their reputation for coming up with good ideas and carrying them through to completion.

Too Conservative on Parks

FEW BRITISH COLUMBIANS need to be reminded of the growing popularity of their parks. Each year statistics disclose more people turning to them for recreation than in previous seasons.

They might, however, find some interest in a comparative statement by Mr. Horace M. Albright, United States National Parks Service director in 1931. When, in that year, Great Smoky Mountains National Park was established, Mr. Albright made the forecast that it would eventually attract a million visitors a year.

Recently, the retired director has had occasion to revise his forecast. The figures last year did not show one million visitors. They totalled four million.

The optimistic predictions of 30 years ago were far too low. Similarly, British Columbia might keep in mind the trend of the last three decades as it retains and develops wilderness areas for parks use. Much as such areas are enjoyed now, the demand for them will continue to grow. The moral from Mr. Albright's Great Smoky Mountains National Park is clear. Reservation of land for future parks is an investment almost guaranteed to produce fantastic dividends.

GLOBAL SPORT

Haggling for Fun and Profit

THERE'S a bit of the old-time horse trader in all of us, it seems. And it becomes particularly evident when governmental folk get together to do a deal.

You only need to review the Columbia power negotiations to get a good picture of the thing in action. There were the months of bargaining between Canadian and American commissions, offering this, declining that, yielding a mountain of dry ground here but gaining an acre-foot of water there; upstream investments versus downstream benefits, undertakings not to do this in return for promises to do that. It was a heroic spectacle, but it was, of course, only the beginning.

Once the major decisions were made between the two countries, it was the turn of Mr. Bennett to take on Ottawa. There were the federal offers of loans and rates, the provincial claims of this and that, the side-play of the Peace River, the balancing of American impatience against Canadian need, and above all a careful estimate of just how much of these shenanigans the public would stand for.

Losing Audience

Apparently the public capacity is endless. There seem to be no complaints about delay from the man in the street. He has not only lost confidence, he's lost interest. But the haggling and trading will go on until a bargain is struck. And the bargain may not be the only target.

The same thing is going on in the civic field. Here we see the province, in the guise of the hydro commission, working out a deal for its power building. The city holds back, so the province says maybe it could make a better price if the city would take over the bus system. But the answer to that in some quarters is, well, we might take over the bus service if you throw in the electricity distribution system.

As Our Readers See It

Independent Appraisal

We need the Black Ball Ferry line like I need a hole in the head. If the C.P.R. ever decides to modernize its line with terminals in downtown Vancouver and Nanaimo, what price Black Ball?

If we must buy the Black Ball line, let us at least have an independent appraisal made of the assets by some firm in whom we have confidence.

Profit-Sharing

Growers Wine Company who have just announced the availability of a profit-sharing plan for their employees are to be warmly commended. Such an undertaking is not only a wise but also a constructive move that can, in the long run, prove beneficial to employer, employee and consumer alike.

In short, the profit-sharing scheme could conceivably be an answer to inflated production costs which ultimately reflect so adversely on the consumer market. It may also provide the employee with a renewed incentive and greater sense of responsibility—discourage indolence and negligence and culminate in a finished product of the highest quality. In addition, wage demands would be substantially reduced, this also removing the temptation of management to capitalize on higher pay scales—the practice of elevating consumer prices threefold over and above the actual cost of the new agreements.

Profit-sharing may not be a panacea for all our economic ills, but nevertheless, it could be an ambitious move toward improved social and economic health.

Who's Which?

It seems we are fast reaching a state of anarchy in B.C.: in reality we have no government.

Instead we have a highly-paid (by the taxpayer) organization using the Parliament Buildings as offices (rent-free), consisting of an elected tycoon and his subjugated underlings (also elected, but ignored by the tycoon) gouging out a vast business and industrial empire in B.C., using methods no businessman would be allowed to use.

FROM PARIS

De Gaulle and West Germany

STUDYING Paris from Washington, the American policymakers have apparently constructed a fairly sinister interpretation of President de Gaulle's recent dealings with the ever-present problem of Berlin.

De Gaulle expects a bad outcome at Berlin, so this American theory runs. He wishes to be able to blame the United States for this outcome. Above all, he wishes to be free from blame himself, and thus to appear before the West Germans as the one truly dependable ally. De Gaulle's aim, in short, is to strengthen the Franco-German partnership so much that it will replace the German-American partnership.

There may indeed be some such Machiavellian after-thoughts, intermingled with the larger considerations which have led de Gaulle to adopt a fairly disdainful hands-off posture. But that is relatively unimportant.

These after-thoughts could not have crossed the French President's mind unless he already expected the Berlin crisis to end badly.

The question, in fact, is whether de Gaulle's pessimistic expectation is well-founded. If he has rightly judged the present trend of Western policy-making, very little else matters, at least for the moment.

To begin with, the chasm that now divides Paris and Washington plainly originates in a basic difference of emphasis and viewpoint.

Deeply Worried

Washington is deeply worried about the future of Berlin, partly because American prestige will be so disastrously damaged if the American commitment to the free Berliners is not fully honored. But Washington tends to take West Germany, for granted, as though the Germany of Konrad Adenauer would go on forever.

Paris, in contrast, is deeply concerned about West Germany as a whole, and only concerned about Berlin because the future of Berlin will affect the future of Germany. Thus de Gaulle was passionately and quite sincerely alarmed when he thought he discerned an American tendency "to give away bits of West Germany, in order to buy tranquility at Berlin."

It has to be admitted that there are grounds for this suspicion.

FROM OTTAWA

Bomarc and Bases

OPPOSITION Leader Lester B. Pearson has spelled out the policy of the Liberals in regard to nuclear arms for Canada. The question was raised by reporters at a press conference in Quebec City. Mr. Pearson explained that he was opposed to Canadian possession of nuclear weapons. If Canada acquired such weapons it would be just expanding the nuclear club. He was against such an expansion. The fewer countries possessing such weapons the less likelihood of a Third World War being set off by accident.

However, Mr. Pearson said he was not against the nuclear deterrent as such. If the United States government told a Liberal government in power in Canada that it was a matter of the greatest importance that there be stationed in Canada American weapons with nuclear warheads, and made a strong case for such weapons being located in Canada, then a Liberal government would give the request very serious consideration.

This would not be the same as Canada having nuclear weapons on a base of its own in Canada, he pointed out.

Wide Attention

This policy statement attracted wide attention. When he reached Nova Scotia he had another press conference at Amherst. Here reporters questioned the accuracy of earlier reports that he would agree to allow Americans to establish bases in Canada under American control, armed and equipped with nuclear weapons.

Mr. Pearson assured the Nova Scotia newsmen that he had been accurately quoted. But he pointed out that he had not said such bases would be automatically granted if asked for—rather the government would have to give careful consideration to such a request.

The question first came up when reporters questioned Mr. Pearson about the Bomarc. Mr. Pearson indicated that he was convinced that the present Conservative government is preparing, without even telling the Canadian people, to

In his conversations with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Secretary of State Dean Rusk spontaneously introduced "European security" as a possible topic of East-West negotiations. A little later, in the quadripartite working group in Washington, the Americans spontaneously suggested that it might be wise to think about an East-West agreement permanently banning nuclear armament for West Germany's military forces.

To the Europeans as well as the Russians, "European security" means the Rapacki Plan or one of the other NATO-cripping schemes for "thin out" or "disengagement."

The fact that Rusk brought up the idea, on his own motion, caused great alarm in Bonn. So did the other proposal. In effect, it would have made the design of West Germany's defence structure subject to the Kremlin's approval.

In the ensuing commotion, the American policymakers protested that much too much was being made of ideas which were merely being played with, but had not been officially adopted.

Dangerous Thinking

Rightly or wrongly, President de Gaulle is convinced that this kind of thinking is fatally dangerous. In principle, he believes it is fatal to allow the Soviets to use Berlin as a lever for the extraction of concessions having nothing to do with Berlin. Once this practice is accepted, it can lead anywhere.

More important still, de Gaulle and the French are also convinced that it is fatal to do this for highly practical reasons having to do with the present condition of West Germany. The old, reliable, predictable German government of Konrad Adenauer will come to an end within two years. The new Germany is coming of age and becoming conscious of a new nationhood.

Now is the time, in fact, when the West Germans will choose their national course, and they may choose quite a different course from the one so long charted by Adenauer.

In these circumstances, President de Gaulle and his co-workers believe it will be appallingly risky to give the Germans the smallest ground for doubting their Western partners' total dependability in a crunch.

They consider, in short, that the future of Germany is at stake. They may exaggerate the risk, but their position is far more logical and well-founded than many people in Washington seem to suppose.

acquire nuclear warheads under the control of the United States for the Bomarc, based in Canada.

Otherwise the government had been spending millions of the taxpayers' dollars on weapons that could operate as only a fraction of their effectiveness. He told reporters that the Liberals had information from Washington that the Bomarc B—the weapon now being installed at North Bay in Ontario and La Macaza in Quebec—was not capable of carrying non-nuclear warheads.

Less Efficient

He acknowledged that there had been reports from the company building the Bomarc that it was possible to manufacture non-nuclear warheads for the Bomarc B, but that the weapon would only operate at a fraction of its effectiveness with such warheads. This on the face of it, he suggested, was the height of foolishness.

Recently a member of the press gallery contacted the Boeing company, builders of the Bomarc. He asked for a firm and final statement as to whether the weapon was capable of utilizing non-nuclear warheads. A company spokesman replied that it was not an authority on the warhead for the Bomarc missile. The company does not design, build or supply warheads of any description for any missile and therefore had no first hand knowledge of them.

However the company did declare that it had designed any missile (the Bomarc B) on the understanding that it would be armed with nuclear warheads. The missile was designed to meet the specific requirements which the company had been told were required by a nuclear warhead.

Clear Intent

It would appear from the company's own statements that the Bomarc B was designed primarily for use with nuclear warheads. To equip it with any other warheads renders it ineffective for the defence job it is designed to carry out. As a matter of fact when the then defence minister Hon. George Pearkes announced that Bomarc would be based in Canada, he made it clear they would have nuclear warheads.

But since then an old colleague of Mr. Pearkes, Mr. Howard Green, has become secretary of state for external affairs. In that position Mr. Green—with the backing of Prime Minister Diefenbaker—has been fighting a losing battle in the United Nations for disarmament. He has flatly opposed Canada's acquiring nuclear warheads for the Bomarc missiles on the grounds that this would undermine Canada's position with the uncommitted nations, as a peace-loving nation at the UN.

Opposite View

Defence Minister Douglas Harkness, Mr. Pearkes' successor, takes the opposite view. He wants Canada to make the decision to acquire nuclear warheads for the Bomarc and other weapons for her forces. There are indications that gradually the Canadian government is coming around to the position of accepting nuclear warheads.

The moment for decision for the Conservative government is close at hand. Early next year will see the Bomarc missiles in place and ready to be armed. Prime Minister Diefenbaker may decide to make the question an issue in the coming general election. But his decision has got to be made and made soon.

Long Live King Orry! He'll Add Class to Fairs

By DON INGHAM

A young Scottish monarch came to Victoria today, to help Joseph L. Saville, Sidney cattleman and former Cobble Hill dairy farmer, build up a championship Ayrshire herd.

He is Rotterow King Orry, an Ayrshire bull born Feb. 21, 1960, in Mauchline, Ayrshire (of course) Scotland, who will become herd sire at Mr. Saville's farm at 1895 John Road.

He was bought for Mr. Saville in Scotland last year, but arrived in Canada only a few months ago. Mr. Saville picked him up last week in Howick, Que., while on a buying trip. Orry arrived here this morning in a railroad boxcar accompanied by 17 other fine Ayrshires, including cows, heifers, a bullock, and one nimble calf.

They will join the 13 cattle already at the farm, and next year will be all set to compete in several classifications.

"Emphasis will be on breeding and showing. "I don't plan to ship any milk," he said today at the

E & N Railway freight yard while loading his new charges on truck for the last leg of the trip to their new home.

He was well known for his fine Ayrshire dairy herd near Cobble Hill, on the Trans-Canada Highway, which he sold in January. It was suggested that having worked a lifetime at raising stock, now he planned to enjoy it.

"I've always enjoyed it," he said, "but maybe you're right. I guess I'm going to enjoy it a lot more."

Most of the newcomers were sired by a bull called Neverfear, of the same blood line as King Orry, and several of them are due to calve in August.

"They were bought intentionally as cattle ready for showing with their progeny in the fall fairs," Mr. Saville said. "Putting a show string together isn't done by accident."

The newcomers cost about $7,000, and left Toronto Saturday night.

But it wasn't as easy as putting the cattle in the car, nailing it shut, and unloading them here.

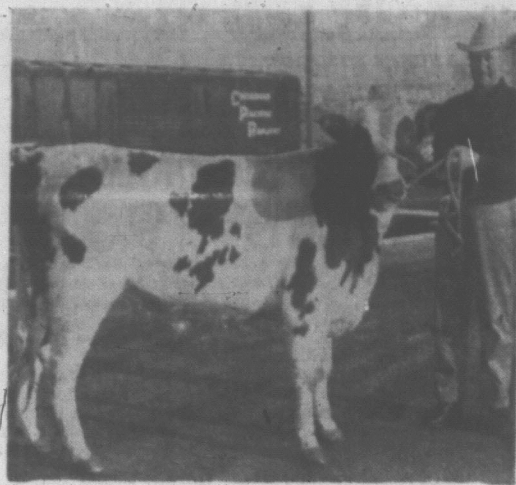

All had to be fed, all had to have water, and the cows had to be milked, and the man responsible for their care was 66-year-old Roy Cameron, who dosed down in the car in Toronto, and was not able to pack his suitcase until this afternoon.

His sleeping bag and supplies were on one of the two decks built just above head level at each end of the car, and the cattle provided the warmth.

"I've been nursemaiding cows for delivery all my life," he said. "Most trips are by train, but three years ago I took 55 head to Venezuela by boat."

Experienced stockman that he is, he has always preferred handling machinery, and spent 10 years demonstrating farm equipment in South Africa, between 1922 and 1932.

He gives credit for a long, active, and healthy life in his trade to an early, early lesson, which he learned well and has never forgotten: "Never, never, never make friends with a bull. He will be the one that will get you."

Cattleman Joe Saville welcomes blue-blood bull.

FOR VICTORIA BIRTHDAY

Centennial Stamp Studied in Ottawa

Issue of a special postage stamp to mark Victoria's centenary next year is under study, Canada's Postmaster-General William Hamilton said today.

Mr. Hamilton said that personally he favors the idea.

"Normally on the 100th anniversary of a city we would not issue a postage stamp," he said. "But when it comes to a provincial capital that in my opinion is entirely different."

"We are in the process of taking a pretty careful look at it. I won't say there will be one, but I certainly hope so."

He suggested that the stamp might be issued next Aug. 2, actual date of Victoria's incorporation as a city in 1862.

INSPECTION

Mr. Hamilton was here to inspect local postal operations. He was in the Victoria Post Office at 7.30 a.m. for a talk to letter carriers, and he also served behind the counter to get patrons' reactions to the service here.

"I'm still trying to find somebody with any complaint anywhere here—either sour in the job or sour in the service," said Mr. Hamilton.

He said the Victoria postal service was "a remarkable operation."

"The thing that hit me was the spirit and enthusiasm of the people operating it," he said.

Mr. Hamilton said his department has just started a new process for assessing complaints and correcting the faults that caused them.

All complaints—there are about 300,000 a year involving the four billion letters mailed in Canada—are fed through a computer, analyzed, and faults traced down.

NO SPLIT

Mr. Hamilton did not involve himself directly in the current Ottawa-B.C. dispute over the Columbia River power project, but he repeated the statement he made in Vancouver earlier this week that there is no split in the federal cabinet on the matter.

He said that Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton was the spokesman for Ottawa on the Columbia, and that Mr. Fulton "knew all about it."

Laboratory Tests Finished On Scale Model Freighter

Construction of a new coastal freight and passenger ship for B.C. waters came a step closer today with the announcement that laboratory tests of a scale model have been completed.

Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd. and Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd., North Vancouver, parent company of Yarrows Ltd., have already tendered on the ship, to be operated by Northland Navigation Co.

$2,000 Award After Crash Christmas Day

Mrs. Laura Evelyn Ross of Port Alberni was awarded $2,000 general damages in B.C. Supreme Court today for injuries and losses sustained in a collision on the Island Highway near Lantzville, Nanaimo, on Christmas Day, 1959.

Her daughter, Linda Mac Ross, was awarded $500 damages and her son, Edward William, $250. Both were passengers in Mrs. Ross' car.

Mr. Justice James Hutchison found that a tip-up truck driven by Leslie Bagley of Nanaimo, an employee of the B.C. Highways Department, was responsible for the collision.

NO LIGHTS

The truck was said to be obstructing the highway, with no lights showing at the rear, at about 8 p.m. on Christmas Day, 1959.

A car driven by Gerald R. Merrill, 835 Pemberton Road, Victoria, crashed into the back of the truck, bounced off and collided with Mrs. Ross' car.

Mrs. Ross sued Mr. Merrill and Mr. Merrill in turn sued Mr. Bagley.

Mr. Justice Hutchison absolved Mr. Merrill from any blame, ruling that Mr. Bagley was entirely to blame for the accident, since his truck was a "dangerous obstruction" on the highway.

Costs will be awarded later. Rodney Taylor appeared for Mr. Merrill; Lloyd McKenzie for Mr. Bagley and Armour Ford for Mrs. Ross and her children.

HOAR FROST covered city first thing today as temperature dropped to low 22 degrees overnight. Despite slippery roads, auto accidents were fewer than normal as drivers took extra precautions. Highway crews sanded Malahat all night long

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1961—PAGE 17

WILL COUNCIL WIN POWER SYSTEM?

'Cat and Mouse' Bus Game Moves Into Critical Phase

By JOHN MIKA, Times City Hall Reporter

A hidden chess game between City Hall and the provincial government over the transit system is beginning to emerge through the haze of the mayoralty campaign.

Here's how some observers, watching the civic scene, identify the players.

Making moves for the government are Dr. Hugh Keenleyside—who will be stuck with the buses as head of B.C. Hydro unless they are dumped—and mayoralty candidates J. Donald Smith, a Social Credit MLA, and Elmer McEwen, who has close connections with the provincial cabinet and is considered by some to be an occasionally accurate barometer of government thinking.

The city, with willing help from the outside municipalities, appears to be making its moves through intermunicipal committee.

The game is considered a test match for a similar situation in Vancouver where the provincial government's biggest transit problem lies since it took over B.C. Electric.

Main reason the government is believed to have for trying to get rid of the buses is the severe political headache involved in trying to please bus passengers who can vent their displeasure through the ballot box.

The city's main reason for not wanting the buses is economic—the $500,000 annual operating loss in Greater Victoria.

Government Gives Up a Few Pawns

So far, the provincial government has given up a few pawns to improve its position in pressuring the city—mainly through Dr. Keenleyside who has intimated government willingness to sell the B.C. Hydro Building to Victoria for a City Hall.

But that wasn't enough—in intermunicipal committee at Mayor Percy Scurrell's urging flatly rejected a suggestion that the buses should be taken over even for nothing by the city.

Next move was tipped by Mr. McEwen who said the government was willing to add a whopping discount on its $660,000 price for the Hydro Building if the city would only take the buses.

An indication of the fierce ness of the game came at Thursday's council meeting when aldermen hastily killed a decision to have a plebiscite on the B.C. Hydro purchase.

"I think this cat and mouse game we have been playing with the provincial government has turned into a rat race," Ald. Michael Griffin said.

The war of nerves has reached such a pitch that aldermen called off the plebiscite lest its passage trap them and give the government a cheap victory.

A yes vote would morally bind the city to go ahead with buying B.C. Hydro's building.

Dealing with a captive buyer, the government could easily throw the buses in free with the deal as a compulsory condition of sale.

Sell System to Private Group?

Another diversion thrown into the campaign has been the strongest hint that the government is dealing with a private party for sale of the bus system. Once off its hands, the transit system could go bankrupt and fall on to the municipalities by default so far as the government is concerned.

But the municipalities have met this flanking move by reminding the government they hold a franchise veto on any sale of the bus system and indicating they will use the veto unless the government guarantees continued operation of the buses if it sells them to a private company.

With luck and determination, several people believe the municipalities can continue to checkmate the government until they get a package deal of the buses—and the lucrative

BCE power distribution system.

This is based on a belief that the government would not dare to leave Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver in the lurch by arbitrarily dropping the transit services with no one to pick them up.

This situation seems to be the background for two more veiled moves by the government, heralded by the mayoralty candidates Mr. Smith and Mr. McEwen, which involve substantial sacrifices in order to "lift the municipalities' checkmate."

The first of these appears to be Mr. Smith's strong advocacy of provincial government action to force creation of a metropolitan government. This would please many officials throughout the area without antagonizing unduly those who want the four local councils to remain in existence.

Balance Profits Against Bus Loss

A metro government, superimposed on the present civic scene and probably made up of appointed representatives, could undertake the bus service on a businesslike basis—provided it had the money to offset the automatic transit losses.

The financial angle seems to have been supplied by Mr. McEwen—who was right about the cut-rate B.C. Hydro proposal—in a statement suggesting that he would be in favor of taking over the buses if the city could buy the B.C. Electric's power distribution system.

By retailing electricity—supplied by the province as a wholesaler—a metro government could balance profits against the transit losses just as the privately-owned B.C. Electric did and as do many of Canada's cities which have municipal bus systems.

This suggestion was made earlier by Mayor Scurrell as the only acceptable formula under which the city would take over the buses.

At the time, the government refused. Mayor Scurrell dug in his heels and so far the government has not won the game—which has a Jan. 1 deadline of convenience because that's when B.C. Hydro assumes responsibility for the buses.

Some observers think that Mr. McEwen's statement indicates that the government is prepared to reverse its previous decision as a last resort.

It may be the only way it can win the game and even then it would not be a one-sided loss.

Because, no matter how financially attractive retailing power in the two largest urban centres of the province may be, the government also has to consider the disadvantage of mailing a bill every month to hundreds of thousands of voters.

Tax Collection Rides Up With Business Climb

A business pickup in Victoria during the past summer could spell good news for next year's city council—a surplus carryover of $50,000 to $100,000.

That's the possibility arising from "very, very good" tax collections to date reported today by city comptroller James Bramley.

Tax collections to the end of October showed 93.27 per cent of the current levy already in city coffers—almost 2 per cent more than at the same time last year.

That's a lot of money when 1 per cent represents $54,000 in the budget.

STILL COMING

And payments are still rolling in at a comparatively brisk pace during the last two-month period of the year although the final result can't be predicted.

"I'm very pleased with our tax collections so far this year," Mr. Bramley said. "Victoria's economy had a real shot in the arm this past summer and it is reflected in the tax collections."

A general increase in pension benefits for about 750 employees of the B.C. Liquor Control Board was approved today.

A cabinet order brought them under the Civil Service Superannuation Act.

Up to now the liquor board employees have been covered by a separate, private pension plan.

Employees already retired will receive increases to bring their pensions up to the civil service level.

PACIFIC STORM TO BRING SNOW

Most of Vancouver Island, and especially higher levels, can expect snow by Saturday morning, according to weatherman William Mackie.

"We're hoping Victoria will escape, but the Malahat almost certainly will have snow," he said.

The villain is a fast-stepping storm in the Pacific which will give cloud here by early Saturday, and rain before noon. Snowfalls will be of short duration, then will turn to rain.

Temperatures here overnight will range between 28 and 33 degrees, and maximum expected for Saturday is 45 degrees. Winds Saturday will be southeasterly at 20 miles an hour.

Unsettled weather picture is expected to continue through Sunday, Mr. Mackie said.

AFTER TALK WITH FINNS

Nikita Warns Norway, Denmark

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today lashed out at NATO members Denmark and Norway and said Russia would take "all necessary measures" now to curb the influence of warlike West Germans.

Remains Found?

GUAM (AP)—The remains of two human bodies, possibly those of Amelia Earhart, famed American flier, and her navigator, were being flown today to University of California at Berkeley for anthropological study.

Willis Snyder, district manager at Guam for Pan American Airways, said the remains include dental plates and other bones found in a Saipan grave last September. (A United Press report later denied that dental plates were among the remains.)

Miss Earhart's plane disappeared in 1937.

With her was Fred Noonan, her navigator.

There were reports last year that parts of the Earhart plane had been recovered from shallow coastal waters at Saipan and that Japanese had executed both Miss Earhart and Noonan.

Khrushchev accused Denmark and Norway of scuttling Scandinavian security by helping West Germany threaten Russia through Finland.

The premier was speaking at Novosibirsk, Siberia, 2,000 miles from Moscow after winding up talks with Finnish President Urho Kekkonen.

The talks were on Soviet charges that West Germany and its NATO partners threatened Russia through Finland, and Khrushchev said the Soviet Union's duty was to take "all necessary measures" now before it is too late to curb West German militarists and revanchists.

"By giving in to the pressure and demands of NATO and especially of West Germany many military circles and by actively entering into new military preparations, Denmark and Norway, we are undermining their own security and aggravating the situation in northern Europe and in the basin of the Baltic," he said.

Khrushchev said both Finland and Norway.

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian Red Cross official just back from the Congo said today United Nations pilots there suspect sabotage in the plane crash that killed Dag Hammarskjöld, UN secretary-general.

Reuben C. Baetz, assistant national Red Cross commissioner, said in an interview that UN personnel also said several of the bodies in the plane wreckage were riddled with bullets.

U.S. Jet Sets New Speed Record

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A navy jet fighter has streaked through the air at an average of more than 1,606 miles an hour—2½ times the speed of sound—to set a new world's speed record, the U.S. Navy said today.

The F4H Phantom II jet averaged 1,606.342 miles an hour for about 20 miles, 81 miles an hour faster than the existing mark held by the air force.

Secret French Nuclear Test Reported

BENNETT WANTS ACTION

Fleming Asked To Talk Power

Premier Bennett said Thursday he is writing to federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming inviting a speedy meeting either in Victoria or Ottawa on the Columbia River project.

Mr. Bennett said in Kelowna that he is leaving it up to Mr. Fleming to decide if Prime Minister Diefenbaker should also attend.

In Ottawa an aide to Mr. Fleming said the finance minister would be glad to discuss the Columbia with the premier, but would wait for his letter before deciding details of the meeting.

DIEF INVITED

At the same time a move was launched by Vancouver Conservatives to invite the prime minister to speak there about the Columbia.

These moves came against a background of dissent and confusion over the role of the U.S. in B.C.-Ottawa negotiations on the Columbia project.

This started last week when Premier Bennett met President Kennedy in Seattle, and now concerns statements attributed to U.S. Secretary of the Interior Charles Udall about the possibility of B.C.

selling Columbia benefit power to the Americans.

'SOCIAL' MEETING

Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton Thursday called in U.S. ambassador Livingston Merchant in Ottawa to explain the situation.

Mr. Fulton said he had been assured by Mr. Merchant that the Kennedy-Bennett meeting was only "social" and not concerned with specific Columbia details.

He said he was awaiting a fuller report on Mr. Udall's remarks.

Mr. Fulton said press reports said "Mr. Udall commented recently that he has no doubt that the sale to the U.S. of Canada's entitlement to Columbia River power would be approved by Ottawa."

He also said Mr. Udall had been quoted that "Canada's concern about difficulties over the capture-of-power sold to the U.S. under long-term contracts was stuff and nonsense."

Mr. Fulton continued: "With respect to the specific remarks attributed to Secretary of the Interior Charles Udall."

Famed Financial Wizard Promoted Peace Project

Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren—a mystery man of international finance who indirectly became the hottest political issue in recent B.C. history—died today in a Stockholm Red Cross Hospital.

The 80-year-old financial wizard succumbed to what his doctors described as a non-benign tumor in the stomach.

His impact was felt in B.C. in 1957 when he entered an exclusive agreement with the B.C. government to explore the Rocky Mountain Trench—one-tenth the area of the whole province—with the object of developing a huge industrial complex linked to civilization with a monorail.

STILL BIG ISSUE

Out of the controversial deal grew the proposed Peace River power development—still the province's leading political issue—which was taken over by the provincial government recently.

Only remaining interest in the province held by various companies set up by Wenner-Gren is the shaky Pacific Northern Railway which succeeded the defunct monorail scheme but already has passed a deadline for start of construction. A government decision on the railway's fate is expected next week.

Dr. Wenner-Gren himself was a controversial figure in B.C. along with his several development schemes. A brother-in-law of Herman Goering, he had been blacklisted by Allied nations during the Second World War for trading with the Nazis.

Following the war, he lived in Mexico for a lengthy period but returned to his native Sweden some time ago.

WENNER-GREN
... tumor victim

He was greeted with considerable fanfare by the provincial government during a short visit here aboard his luxury yacht.

An organization genius, he was reported to have had active business interests in 20 countries.

He founded his fortune on vacuum cleaners and home refrigerators, but the scores of corporations he later controlled turned out everything from diet pills to railroad trains.

A giant among philanthropists, he had given an estimated $25,000,000 to various scientific and health foundations he established in Sweden and the United States.

AT KINGSTON

Prison Guard Knifed to Death

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A Kingston Penitentiary guard was hacked to death early today in a washroom at the maximum security institution.

William Clement Wentworth, 42, was found at 2 a.m. by Paul Deschamps, senior guard in charge of the prison at the time, Wentworth was bleeding from 11 wounds.

Two bloodstained knives were found in a garbage pail in the 42-prisoner dormitory where the slaying occurred. Prison officers said it appeared the guard had been attempting to defend himself.

All 42 prisoners have access to the washroom where Wentworth was found.

The guard was married, the father of two children, and had worked at the prison for nine years.

A three-pronged investigation—by prison officials, city police and RCMP has begun. Prison officials said the 42 men in the area were kept together because they were thought to be "compatible."

The last time a guard was killed in the prison was about 10 years ago, officials said.

The slain man was reported to have been prominent in boy scout and church work.

Dormitory C, where the stabbing occurred, is an open room. There are no partitions.

The washroom is at the far end from the locked and barred door.

The beds, hospital type, are in four rows with walking space between and a wider space beyond every 10th bed.

The lone guard sits at a desk near the door, locked in with the prisoners. He is not armed.

From where he sits, the guard can see the whole room.

At intervals, the patrol guard in the yard outside shines a flashlight or waves from the window.

Prison officials said there would be little reason for the senior guard to come to the dormitory other than to investigate the lack of an answering signal.

There was no word on where the two knives found came from, but it was believed they were made in the blacksmith shop or the machine shop.

ADOULA OPPOSES PLAN TO DISARM CONGOLESE

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula declared his opposition today to any disarming of Congolese troops, forcing the United Nations to re-examine its plan to punish the Katanga mutineers who slaughtered 13 UN airmen from Italy.

UN headquarters here immediately opened a radio link with Acting Secretary-General U Thant in New York on receipt of a letter from the Congolese premier this morning.

CHILDREN OF INDIA

$7 a Month Sponsors Needy Child in Home

The most personal project undertaken by the Unitarian Service Committee is its Foster Parent Scheme under which it now supports 30 children's institutions in Korea, Hong Kong, Italy, France and India.

The scheme is just one of the many facets of USC work in foreign lands which is supported by donations to the Times Children of India Fund. For only $7 a month an individual, church group, men's or women's organization or group of friends can sponsor a child in one of the 30 homes. Letters, pictures and little home-made gifts from the children convey a desperate feeling of being wanted but, as one foster parent put it: "Your scheme is a two-way street and I believe I am getting much more out of it than my child."

The $7 provides food, clothing, medical care and education. Older children are given vocational training to allow the young to stand on their own feet when they grow up.

USC executive director, Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, tells of a Korean boy whose foster father in Vancouver died. "All the child could do," she said, "was to send the seeds of his national flower to be planted on the father's grave so he could be near him always."

Looming over this personal care for a relatively few children is the spectre of starving and diseased children dying in their thousands.

The executive director especially appealed to Victorians who thought a few cents of a dollar was too small to give but could not spare any more.

"Your dollar may not buy very much here," she said, "but if only you could see how big it grows when we use it to buy life in India."

Donations may be sent or brought to the Times at 2631 Douglas and gifts of adult and children's clothing to 1117 Wharf.
